

The Economics of Two-Sided Markets

Marc Rysman

At a local Best Buy, a child places a new Sony PlayStation 3 on the cashier's counter while the parents dig out their Visa card. The gaming system and the payment card may appear to have little connection other than this purchase. However, these two items share an important characteristic that is generating a series of economic insights and has important implications for strategic decision making and economic policymaking. Both video game systems and payment cards are examples of two-sided markets.

Broadly speaking, a two-sided market is one in which 1) two sets of agents interact through an intermediary or platform, and 2) the decisions of each set of agents affects the outcomes of the other set of agents, typically through an externality. In the case of a video game system, the intermediary is the console producer—Sony in the scenario above—while the two sets of agents are consumers and video game developers. Neither consumers nor game developers will be interested in the PlayStation if the other party is not. Similarly, a successful payment card requires both consumer usage and merchant acceptance, where both consumers and merchants value each others' participation. Many more products fit into this paradigm, such as search engines, newspapers, and almost any advertiser-supported media (examples in which consumers often negatively value, rather than positively value, the participation of the other side), as well as most software or title-based operating systems and consumer electronics. Malls which seek retailers and consumers, convention organizers which seek buyers and sellers, dating services which seek men and women, and The Journal of Economic Perspectives which seeks content and readership, all experience the economics of two-sided markets. The multi-sided nature of many Internet and high-technology markets, as well as new payment systems and media outlets, suggest that two-sided and multi-sided markets are becoming increasingly important.

■ Marc Rysman is Associate Professor of Economics, Boston University, Boston, Massachusetts. His e-mail address is <mrysman@bu.edu>.

This paper seeks to explain what two-sided markets are and why they interest economists. I discuss the strategies that firms typically consider, and I highlight a number of puzzling outcomes from the perspective of the economics of two-sided markets. Finally, I consider the implications for public policy, particularly antitrust and regulatory policy, where there have been a number of recent issues involving media, computer operating systems, and payment cards.

What Defines a Two-Sided Market?

The literature on two-sided markets is distinguished by its focus on the actions of the market intermediary. Generally speaking, research in two-sided markets explores choices by market intermediaries, particularly pricing, when there is some kind of interdependence or externality between groups of agents that the intermediary serves. The externality could involve usage or membership. For instance, payment card users care about how many merchants are members of the same card network, not about how much any merchant transacts over the network. In contrast, in picking which networks to accept, merchants care more about which networks consumers actually use rather than which networks consumers hold cards on.

Of course, one-sided markets have intermediaries, too. For example, consider a farmer that sells a product to a grocery store once and does not otherwise interact with the grocer. The grocer then picks a retail price based on inventory and demand. In this one-sided market, the farmer collects the wholesale price and is then indifferent to the success of the grocer in actually selling the good. The distinguishing feature in this case is whether the seller is paid based on the success of the platform with the buying side.<sup>1</sup> Strikingly, one-sided and two-sided selling strategies exist side-by-side at Amazon.com. For some products, like certain new books, Amazon (basically) buys at a wholesale price and sells for a retail price, which is a one-sided model. But for many other products, Amazon provides a web portal for a producer that sets the retail price that a consumer would see. As this distinction often depends on the decisions of the intermediary rather than on purely technological features of the market, it may be better to use the term “two-sided strategies” rather than “two-sided markets.” Regardless, how Amazon makes this choice about whether to be one-sided or two-sided is an important question for this literature.

<sup>1</sup> Or should a grocery store be considered a two-sided market? Armstrong (2006, Section 5) provides a formal model of grocery stores as a two-sided market. In his model, the grocery store sets the price per consumer, and the wholesaler is paid based on how many consumers show up. That contrasts with my characterization of a grocery store, in which a wholesaler sells a product for a known sum, the retailer takes possession of the product and sells the product as it wishes, and the wholesaler has no concern for how many units the retailer is able to sell. In my view, a grocery store is in a one-sided market, but Armstrong would disagree.

This definition of a two-sided market may seem very broad, or overly inclusive. That is not a problem in my view. The interesting question is often not whether a market can be defined as two-sided—virtually all markets might be two-sided to some extent—but how important two-sided issues are in determining outcomes of interest. For instance, if an auto manufacturer sells many products in a single neighborhood, local mechanics may develop expertise in that type of car, which encourages further sales by the manufacturer in the future. Hence, the market for autos could be viewed as two-sided because manufacturers must attract both consumers and mechanic expertise. At present, even if such a network effect exists, it seems of little importance either in the minds of market participants or in determining market outcomes. That is, although two-sidedness may exist in practically all markets, it is not always quantitatively important. But at times in the past, these sorts of two-sided issues may have been very important in the auto industry—perhaps when autos were first diffusing across the United States. Such networks could also become important in the next decade as the auto industry considers alternative engine configurations and new sources of fuel.

The emphasis on market intermediaries is the main distinction between the literature on two-sided markets and the literature on network effects, and on indirect network effects in particular. The definitions are similar: a good exhibits an indirect network effect if demand for the good depends on the provision of a complementary good, which in turn depends on demand for the original good (for example, Church and Gandal, 1992; Chou and Shy, 1990). Indeed, in a technical sense, the literature on two-sided markets could be seen as a subset of the literature on network effects.<sup>2</sup> However, papers on two-sided markets tend to focus on the actions of the market intermediary, particularly pricing choices, whereas papers on network effects typically focus on adoption by users and optimal network size. Also, the literatures differ somewhat in industry focus, with papers on two-sided markets focusing more on media, payments systems, and matching markets, and the networks papers focusing more on high-technology and telecommunication markets. However, the difference in industries is not crucial, and there are exceptions on both sides. Parker and Van Alstyne (2000) is an early two-sided markets paper that studies operating systems. Similarly, matching markets can be seen as two-sided in the sense that the matching “platform” (for instance, a dating service) is more attractive as more participants sign up. Caillaud and Julien (2003) and Damiano and Li (2008) study matching markets from this perspective.

<sup>2</sup> My view is not universal. Rochet and Tirole (2006) provide a technical definition in which a market is two-sided if the total quantity transacted depends not only on the per-unit fee extracted by the intermediary, but also on how much of the fee is paid by buyers and how much is paid by sellers. Hence, if the incidence of a transaction fee depends on who the fee is levied on, the market is two-sided. Almost any market where agents pay a fixed fee is included in this definition, and so their definition includes markets that do not exhibit indirect network effects. However, among papers that identify themselves as studying two-sided markets, the overwhelming majority also study markets with indirect network effects. In this paper, I do not want to argue over definitions but only to raise the various issues in defining two-sided markets.

In the discussion that follows, I focus on three products that exemplify the different types of technologies and business models in which two-sided markets are important. The first product is newspapers, and media more broadly. Newspapers are a canonical two-sided market, where the newspaper provides a platform for communication from advertisers to consumers. Consumer prices depend on advertiser demand to reach those consumers. Advertising prices depend on consumer demand for advertising as well, with relatively low prices for advertisements that consumers more highly value (such as classified advertisements and some local advertisements). The straightforward set-up of newspapers makes them relatively easy to analyze.<sup>3</sup>

The second industry I discuss in depth is the payment card industry. Payment cards like Visa, MasterCard, and American Express are two-sided in the sense that they require consumer usage and merchant acceptance to be successful. Visa and Mastercard have been particularly controversial. They have historically been organized as associations of banks that provide a clearinghouse for transactions using their cards. When a consumer purchases a product with a payment card, the consumer pays the consumer's bank, which transfers money to the merchant's bank, which then pays the merchant. The merchant pays a fee to the merchant's bank, which is typically less than 3 percent. Of great controversy is that the merchant's bank must pay the consumer's bank an "interchange fee," a percent of each transaction. The merchant's fee is set to reflect this cost and is usually only slightly higher than the interchange fee. The interchange fee is set by the card association, and in this sense is set cooperatively by the member banks. (Visa and Mastercard also extract a fee for each transaction, which is used to fund their operations, but this fee is relatively small and has been uncontroversial in credit cards to date.) The interchange fee presumably explains why banks can offer generous rewards programs to consumers for using their credit cards.

The joint setting of the interchange fee raises the specter of collusion, and certainly the interchange fee appears to be high relative to any costs that are incurred on the merchant side or the consumer side. However, as Rochet and Tirole (2002) point out, if serving consumers and merchants is perfectly competitive, then the interchange fee does not affect the profits of the member banks. Rather, banks will compete the subsidy or cost away so that the card association and member banks do not earn a profit. In this scenario, the interchange fee primarily affects the terms that merchants and consumers face and the total volume of transactions. We can raise questions about whether this view of the market is overly simplified, and much of the progress in research on two-sided markets has been motivated by public policy toward card associations and the interchange fee. I take up some of these policy concerns in the final section of the paper. Note that Mastercard and Visa incorporated in 2006 and 2007 and so are organized as for-profit corporations rather than as associations or cooperatives. These changes do not appear to have led to a strategic change with respect to interchange policy.

<sup>3</sup> Newspapers raise difficult welfare issues since advertiser preferences can distort the editorial content of a newspaper away from reader preferences. We do not address that issue here, but see Anderson and Gabzewicz (2006).

The third product I discuss is operating systems. Operating systems provide an interface between hardware devices such as computer devices, cellular telephones, or video game consoles on the one hand and software applications such as word processors, ring tones, and video games on the other. A successful operating system requires consumer adoption as well as software development by software vendors. Some operating systems, like certain video game consoles, are inseparable from their hardware, whereas some, such as Microsoft Windows, require independent hardware production. Many papers that study operating systems identify themselves with network effects rather than two-sided markets so perhaps this example is less canonical, but as I have argued, the two literatures have a lot in common. As we shall see, these markets are particularly useful for exploring issues of openness.

Strategies

The two most important strategies that a potential platform firm chooses are price and openness. The pricing decision has been the subject of rigorous research; openness has so far proven more difficult to analyze. This section discusses pricing and openness, as well as several other strategic decisions that have received little attention to date.

Pricing

Pricing looks unusual in two-sided markets. Consumers pay to receive most newspapers, but not a Yellow Pages directory or an Internet search engine. Consumers do not pay per advertisement in their newspaper but must pay to use more video games with their game console. Many consumers are in effect paid to use a credit card—with rewards programs such as contributions to frequent flyer plans. Theoretically, it is often hard to establish whether a given price in a two-sided market is higher or lower than socially optimal, or even whether greater competition would make the existing price rise or fall. What is going on?

Pricing in two-sided markets has received considerable attention in formal economic research. The main result is that pricing to one side of the market depends not only on the demand and costs that those consumers bring but also on how their participation affects participation on the other side and the profit that is extracted from that participation. In a one-sided market, we can characterize the price–cost mark-up in terms of elasticity of demand and the marginal cost. But in a two-sided market, pricing decisions will also include the elasticity of the response on the other side and the mark-up charged to the other side.

Since the platform faces a similar computation on the other side, prices on both sides of the market depend on the joint set of demand elasticities and marginal costs on each side (Rochet and Tirole, 2003, 2006; Weyl, 2009). This result has important implications for prices. For instance, in any market, prices typically fall as the price elasticity of demand increases, but in a two-sided market the effect can be even larger: The low price on one side not only attracts elastic consumers on that side but also, as a result, leads to higher prices or more participation on the other side. The increased value extracted from the other side magnifies the value of having consumers on the first side, which leads to a yet bigger price decrease and quantity increase for the side that experiences the increase in elasticity.

Such seeming anomalies as price below marginal cost or even negative prices can easily arise in a two-sided market. For example, a platform might charge a price below cost on one side if those agents have a large price elasticity and their participation attracts a large number of participants on the other side who are relatively price inelastic (and hence have a high mark-up). Consider Microsoft, which makes it very easy to become a software developer for the Windows operating system and arguably subsidizes this activity with tutorials and supportive websites. Presumably, Microsoft has set the price to developers well below what the cost of serving them and their demand would imply in a simple one-sided model. However, consumers value developer participation, and consumers pay a mark-up over marginal cost that makes attracting the developers worthwhile for Microsoft, even at the expense of potential profits Microsoft could be making from the developer side.

If there are multiple competing market intermediaries, the effect of participation of one side on the other has even more bite. Consider two competing platforms pricing to consumers and sellers. As without competition, the consumer price depends on consumer demand, consumer cost, and the mark-up to sellers. But now, lowering the consumer price attracts consumers from the competing platform, which degrades the value of the competitor to buyers, and hence leads to a larger increase in buyer interest in the original platform. Hence, the “two-sidedness” of pricing can be more pronounced in competitive markets.

The extent of this effect is in part determined by the way in which agents move from one platform to another—do they shift only some usage from one platform to another or do they move all of their usage? In the real world, we observe both outcomes, often in the same market. Merchants typically accept payment on multiple networks—for example, Visa, Mastercard, American Express, and Discover—as well as via alternatives such as on-line debit cards and personal checks. Meanwhile, consumers typically stick to a single card for months at a time (Rysman, 2007a). At the level of a transaction, consumers almost never split payments across multiple options.

In fact, two-sided markets often seem to evolve toward a situation where members of one side use a single platform and the other side uses multiple platforms; Armstrong (2006, Section 5) makes this point and provides formal analysis. Payment cards are one example. In markets with multiple newspapers, consumers typically read only one newspaper whereas advertisers appear in all of them. This generalization is less true in video games, although even there consumers usually (but not always) buy only one console, and video games distributed for multiple consoles are becoming more common (Lee, 2008; Corts and Lederman, forthcoming).

Why does this issue matter? It is because the intermediary can be viewed as a monopolist over access to members that do not use other intermediaries. Hence, firms compete aggressively on the side that uses a single network in order to charge monopoly prices to the other side that is trying to reach them (Armstrong, 2006). As a result, competition between platforms can have large price effects on the side of the market that uses a single platform and little or no effect on the side that uses multiple platforms. This result might explain why payment card pricing has increasingly favored consumers over time rather than merchants (for instance, with the rise of rewards programs), since consumers and not merchants typically use a single network and competition among card networks has become more important relative to competition between card networks and cash.

Another important issue in a two-sided framework is price discrimination. In a situation of demand heterogeneity, standard price discrimination—for instance, by manipulating the prices for participation and usage—allows a platform to capture more of the surplus on the side with discrimination. Thus, discrimination increases the value extracted on one side, which leads to lower prices on the other side which has now become more valuable (Weyl, 2009). In addition, two-sided markets allow for a new form of price discrimination: discrimination based on heterogeneity in the attractiveness of an agent to the other side. For instance, supermarkets resisted accepting payment cards for a time, but they are highly desirable clients for payment card companies both because of their transaction volume and because regular consumer usage at supermarkets helps encourage consumer usage in other situations. Hence, payment associations offered supermarkets relatively low interchange fees, which led to low bank fees and ultimately to the adoption of payment card usage by supermarkets. Similarly, Sony and Microsoft have given Electronic Arts, the largest game manufacturer, advantageous contracts in order to attract games to their consoles (Eisenman, Parker, and Van Alstyne, 2006). Caillaud and Jullien (2003) show how an entering platform can use price discrimination to be successful even when market participants expect the entrant to fail.

Two-sided markets raise questions for dynamic pricing as well. Penetration pricing, such as when an intermediary lowers price early in the product life cycle and raises it after having established a base, is a natural outcome in two-sided markets. For instance, the independent Yellow Pages publisher “Yellow Book” has a policy of offering advertisement for free in the first year it enters a new city. This strategy makes sense because Yellow Book recognizes that doing so will generate usage, which Yellow Book can capitalize on in the future. Similarly, it is common to establish a technological standard through free distribution of a basic product (for instance, Adobe’s free distribution of Reader popularizes the PDF standard) and then profit on peripheral products (such as Adobe Acrobat).

Openness

In the literature on two-sided markets, openness refers to two specific strategic issues. The first is the number of sides to pursue: a potential platform firm must choose whether to be one-sided, two-sided, or multi-sided. The second is how to relate to competing platforms: platforms may seek incompatibility, compatibility, or some sort of integration.

As an example of the decision over how many sides to pursue, consider operating systems. Apple produces both its computer hardware and its computer operating system, whereas Microsoft controls only the operating system and counts on independent manufacturers to supply hardware. In this sense, Microsoft is more open than Apple. This choice is somewhat akin to a choice over vertical integration, although the relationship between hardware and operating systems is not strictly vertical. Rather, to the extent that a platform does not integrate, it often introduces another side to the multi-sided market calculation. That is, we can characterize Microsoft as managing a three-sided market between consumers, software providers, and hardware providers, whereas Apple manages only a two-sided market between consumers and software providers.

A platform may decide to change its strategy toward integration as its market evolves. For instance, Microsoft has controversially included software applications in its operating system that were also supplied by third party suppliers, such as browser software, media players, and video editing. To the extent that doing so eliminated an independent software market, Microsoft apparently viewed it as worthwhile to reduce the number of sides in its business model.<sup>4</sup>

Incorporated in this decision over openness is the decision of whether to be two-sided or one-sided. Being one-sided is in effect an extreme move away from openness where a firm integrates to the extent that there is no longer a two-sided market interaction. Perhaps it is more natural to observe firms begin with a one-sided model and switch to a two-sided model as they become more established. Doing so allows potential platforms to overcome the “chicken-and-egg” problem by first providing complementary goods themselves (sometimes requiring daunting capital expenditures). For example, Amazon first established itself as a fairly standard on-line book retailer before introducing its “marketplace” options where sellers set prices and interact with consumers.

Thus, it may be better to discuss two-sided “strategies” rather than two-sided “markets,” because two-sidedness is an endogenous choice in some markets, not a technologically determined outcome. The Palm group of products provides an example. When the Palm personal digital assistant was first introduced, Palm produced its own hardware, operating system, and applications software. Hence, it followed a one-sided model. Palm eventually pursued independent software application development, but only after it had sold millions of units (Eisenmann and Hagiu, 2007). Still, the Palm devices all ran the Palm operating system, and Palm licensed very few non-Palm devices to do so. That business pattern changed recently when Palm divested itself into an operating system company and a hardware company. The hardware firm has recently introduced the first Palm device that runs a Windows operating system, and the operating system is currently attempting to attract widespread device production.

<sup>4</sup> From different perspectives, the same business may have different numbers of sides. For instance, it is common to think of Microsoft as managing a three-sided market between consumers, software developers, and hardware manufacturers. However, in evaluating some strategies—such as Microsoft’s approach to the browser market—it may be more useful to recognize Microsoft as a many-sided market between, for instance, spreadsheet software providers, word processing software providers, browser providers, business consumers, home consumers, laptop and desktop manufacturers, printer manufacturers, and others.

Up to now, we have discussed openness in terms of operating systems but we have not mentioned payment cards or newspapers. These markets seem much less flexible in terms of the choice of two-sidedness. Some payment cards and media are clearly one-sided. For instance, store cards and gas cards are payment cards that allow the consumer to use payment card features at a single company. Since all uses of the card are at a single company, they represent a one-sided approach to payments. Similarly, some media does not take advertising and is largely supported by subscriptions, such as Consumer Reports and Cook's Illustrated. However, outside of some particular cases, the basic model of payment cards and media is a two-sided one. In other words, the technology of these industries is such that adding or eliminating sides to their markets is not an important option.

Whereas the first meaning of openness refers to whether to be multi-sided, the second meaning of openness refers to the decision over compatibility and inclusiveness toward rival platforms. If the first meaning of openness is similar to the choice over vertical integration, this second meaning is akin to choosing horizontal relationships. Compatibility refers to the ability of a consumer using one platform to reach a seller using another. Compatibility need not be a “zero-one” decision. A bank that signs up with a network of automatic teller machines (ATMs) can interact with depositors that use any ATM associated with the network, but surcharges make ATMs owned by other banks more or less “compatible” with a given bank’s ATM system (Knittel and Stango, 2008; Hannan, Kiser, Prager, and McAndrews, 2003).

This aspect of openness is important for payment cards and newspapers. The Visa payment system is open in the sense that any bank can join, but it is closed to nonbanks—particularly American Express. For newspapers, compatibility may seem impossible; a consumer reading one newspaper cannot see the advertisements in another newspaper. However, newspapers can pursue horizontal integration through merger. When the New York Times purchased the Boston Globe, one justification was the ability to sell newspaper advertisements throughout the northeastern United States. These joint sales represent a form of compatibility to the advertising buyer, who used to have to negotiate with two separate sellers. Also, media outlets can bundle sales without outright merger. For instance, Yellow Pages publishers maintain a trade association that sells advertisements in all books simultaneously with national campaigns.

Providers of platforms often prefer incompatibility on the grounds that it locks in current customers and locks out competitors. For instance, there has been no movement toward cross-brand compatibility in the video game market. But agents can circumvent incompatible platforms by using multiple platforms. A consumer that uses the Discover card cannot purchase from a store that only takes Visa, so many stores choose to accept both. Such actions can quickly undo any benefits that a platform may seek from resisting compatibility. In response, platforms encourage exclusive membership or usage. Payment cards use rewards programs to encourage exclusive usage on the part of consumers. Similarly, game console manufacturers will sometimes contract with developers to write exclusive games (Corts and Lederman, forthcoming; Lee, 2008). If one side of the market can be made exclusive, there is usually little reason to seek exclusivity on the other side. As argued above, if members of one side use only one platform at a time, the platform can charge monopoly prices to the other side for access.

What determines when markets with platform competition evolve to a “winner-take-all” standard, or when they evolve toward coexisting platforms, or when markets fail altogether? Here, I mention three possible issues that determine whether “tipping” occurs. First, if standards can differentiate from each other, they may be able to successfully coexist (Chou and Shy, 1990; Church and Gandal, 1992). Arguably, Apple and Microsoft operating systems have both survived by specializing in different markets: Microsoft in business and Apple in graphics and education. Magazines are an obvious example of platforms that differentiate in many dimensions and hence coexist.

Second, tipping is less likely if agents can easily use multiple standards. Corts and Lederman (forthcoming) show that the fixed cost of producing a video game for one more standard have reduced over time relative to the overall fixed costs of producing a game, which has led to increased distribution of games across multiple game systems (for example, PlayStation, Nintendo, and Xbox) and a less-concentrated game system market.

Third, the ability of providers of complementary goods to differentiate themselves after picking a platform makes tipping more likely (Ellison and Fudenberg, 2003; Augereau, Greenstein, and Rysman, 2006). Hence, movie producers provide a differentiated product and so are willing to coordinate on the same standard, which was an element in the successful coordination on the VHS standard in the video cassette-recorder market. If the sellers cannot differentiate aside from adopting a standard, they must differentiate by choosing separate standards, which leads to the adoption of multiple standards (Ellison and Fudenberg, 2003) or even adoption failure (Augereau, Greenstein, and Rysman, 2006; Kretschmer, 2008). The lack of opportunities for differentiation is a common explanation for the failure of many websites that were meant to facilitate business-to-business sales. Sellers see little benefit to listing their services on a website in which they are placed in practically perfect competition. For example, Rust and Hall (2003) provide a quote from a steel broker in which the broker questions what he would gain from marketing himself through such a website. Firms that do participate in such websites turn out to be very creative in separating themselves from their competitors, for instance by withholding crucial information until the consumer has clicked from the platform website to the vendor website (Ellison and Ellison, 2009).

Other Strategies

Common strategies in one-sided markets like innovation, advertising, and quality investment can take on added dimensions in a two-sided market. I discuss such strategies briefly in this section, as well as some strategies that are specific to two-sided markets.

Many businesses in two-sided markets rely on new technology, and so a primary concern for any such firm is how much to invest in innovation. Video game consoles have exhibited enormous technical progress, processing eight bits of information at a time in the mid-1980s as compared to 128 bits at a time in the most recent systems. Alongside direct improvement of the platform, firms that interact over the platform can innovate with their products. For instance, computational innovations allow game developers to leverage the technological architecture of any given gaming system into more attractive software. Progress in processing speed by consoles and associated programming techniques by developers explains the improvements in graphic quality and play experience in video games. In many examples, the platform firm and the providers of complements invest in the same issue. For instance, Visa invests in fraud prevention and so do member banks.

Platform or intermediary firms recognize that their policies can affect the level of innovative investment by participating firms. In theory, a platform firm could subsidize improvements or offer discounts for improvements, but such an approach is unusual and hard to implement since the degree or existence of at least some improvements may be hard to verify. More commonly, the platform can shape the market structure in a way that encourages investment. For example, a platform can control market structure through fees, barriers to access, or the direct exclusion of some firms and thus affect incentives for innovation. The exact market structure that maximizes innovation is subject to a long debate (for instance, Aghion, Bloom, Blundell, Griffith, and Howitt, 2005). In the context of two-sided markets, Boudreau (2007) studies the market for operating systems for mobile devices such as personal digital assistants and cellular telephones. He argues that allowing a large number of software developers encouraged incremental innovation, but that large systemic innovation—such as that associated with a new version of the operating system—was better accomplished by operating systems with a relatively small set of software vendors. This point appears relevant for the many innovations associated with the largely technologically closed iPhone.

Other important strategic choices are advertising and quality. While these have been well studied in one-sided markets, they become newly interesting in a two-sided market because the choice on one side of the market affects the price on the other. What would be the effects of advertising? Advertising on one side raises participation and usage on that side, which raises demand on the other side, and so advertising on one side can lead to higher prices on the other. In addition, there is a more subtle effect through mark-ups: advertising to one side that raises the mark-up on that side leads to lower prices on the other side, and vice versa. For instance, suppose that advertising to consumers by Sony for the PlayStation 3 raises sales. As a result, demand by game developers increases, which allows Sony to increase royalties it collects from developers. However, suppose that the advertising also causes consumers to be less price sensitive and hence causes Sony to increase the price to consumers further. As a result, the benefits of attracting a game developer are higher since the resulting consumers are more valuable, which causes Sony to lower the royalty rate, or at least moderate the increase that came from higher demand. If advertising had attracted more price-sensitive consumers, the effect would have been to raise the royalty rate an additional amount.

We often distinguish between “persuasive” advertising that raises the utility of all consumers for a product and “informative” advertising that informs consumers about a product’s existence or features. Persuasive advertising most often increases the mark-up a firm may charge by raising utility, whereas informative advertising can reduce the mark-up by attracting relatively low-demand consumers. Thus, persuasive advertising on one side can lead to lower prices on the other side, whereas informative advertising on one side leads to higher prices on the other. Similarly, the effects of quality investment will depend on whether it generates relatively price-elastic or -inelastic consumers on the margin, and on whether it attracts consumers that are more or less responsive to participation on the other side.

Also, a platform firm must be concerned not only with its own quality and advertising, but also that of the vendors who operate over its network. For instance, a franchisor operates a two-sided market in the sense that it attracts consumers to its brand and franchisees to operate outlets—similar to how an operating system attracts consumers and software vendors. Franchising contracts typically specify numerous “investments” in advertising and quality, such as advertising by the franchisor and cleanliness, and possibly also local advertising, by the franchisee.

Certain more subtle strategies are more common in two-sided than in one-sided markets. In some markets, the platform controls the way suppliers are presented to consumers, and the platform can make it easier or more difficult to search and switch across firms (Hagiu and Julien, 2008). For instance, a web portal presenting multiple sellers of a given product may or may not present the shipping costs associated with the purchase. In other markets, the seller controls how platforms are presented to consumers. For instance, Visa limits the ability of merchants to promote other payment types (like debit cards). In operating systems, an issue in the Microsoft antitrust case was Microsoft’s control of the appearance of the desktop and the place that Microsoft’s browser had in it.

The organization of the platform firm itself offers one more set of strategic choices. In many cases, the platform firm takes on the standard corporate form owned by investors; examples include Microsoft, Sony, and most newspapers. But in a surprising number of cases, the platform firm is owned by market participants. For instance, Visa and Mastercard were until recently associations of member banks. Similarly, the Multiple Listing Service, which must attract housing buyers and sellers, is a cooperative owned by real estate agents. The American Society of Composers, Artists and Publishers (ASCAP) mediates between music producers and music users (such as radio stations) and is an association of music producers. The type of organization greatly affects public policy toward the entities. When large platform corporations run into accusations of anticompetitive behavior, it typically involves charges of monopolization. In contrast, associations often face questions about whether internal policies facilitate collusion. An interesting challenge is to predict which markets will organize in which ways, and the consequences of their choices.

Public Policy

The economics of two-sided markets are important for a wide variety of public policy issues. In this section, I discuss the impact on some parts of antitrust and regulation, and discuss some important cases.

Antitrust

Two-sided markets typically have network effects and as such are likely to tip toward a single dominant platform. As a result, it is not surprising that these markets are of interest to antitrust authorities. Given that pricing can look very different in two- than in one-sided markets, it is important that authorities can properly evaluate the outcomes we observe.

The economics of two-sided markets provides insights primarily into pricing and so is likely to be particularly important for the parts of antitrust enforcement that focus on pricing issues. For instance, there is a growing interest in using merger simulations to evaluate the impact of mergers on prices and outcomes. Naturally, if we were to analyze the merger between two platform firms, we would need to account for complex two-sided issues that arise. For example, consider that the Department of Justice has allowed for joint operating agreements between competing newspapers in some towns, which allows for joint price-setting but with independent editorial control. Evaluating such an agreement requires an analysis of how prices to both consumers and advertisers will change, which are interrelated. In Rysman (2004), I offer another example with Yellow Pages directories.

Merger analysis balances the market power and cost reductions created by a merger. In a two-sided market, if the merger reduces cost on one side, that has implications for price on the other side. Also, a merger could increase market power on both sides of the market and still lead to a price decline on one side. An alternative evaluative tool to merger simulation is to use regression analysis: for instance, regressing price on the number of firms in a market. In a two-sided market, we should consider multiple prices and, potentially, different measures of competition for each side. For example, newspapers compete with billboards for advertising, but not for consumer readership. Video games compete with a host of leisure activities for consumer attention, but not for game developer attention. In Rysman (2007b), I discuss these issues further.

At a more fundamental level, determining the relevant market is a crucial ingredient in constructing most antitrust cases. Antitrust authorities typically use the size of cross-price elasticities to determine what products should be included in a relevant market. If two-sidedness is important, we must account for the endogenous variation in other prices in response to any one price. For instance, suppose we consider whether a price increase to consumers using platform A causes consumers to switch to platform B, which would place the platforms in the same market. We must recognize that the response by A's consumers will also affect participation of A's sellers, which may affect the sellers that B sees and lead to an effect on B's consumers over and above the standard substitution effect from A's consumer price change. Evans and Noel (2005) explore this issue in greater detail.

Several other areas of antitrust analysis use price behavior intensively. For instance, computing damages often involves computing counterfactual prices, such as the price that would have arisen if firms had not colluded. Such a computation could easily be influenced by whether a market is two-sided or not. Similarly, the design of remedies for antitrust violations might be affected. For instance, a judge would probably not want to break up a platform into its constituent parts. Evans (2003) provides a more complete discussion of two-sided markets and antitrust.

It seems clear that the economics of two-sided markets is highly relevant for pricing analysis in antitrust. But that does not mean that it is important for all aspects of antitrust analysis. Although inefficient pricing is the hallmark of the economic criticism of monopoly power, inefficient pricing is not an antitrust violation by itself. Monopolization and vertical contracting cases typically hinge on whether a firm has excluded competitors from the market in a way that did not benefit consumers or reduce costs. The actual prices charged in such a situation are seen as incidental, and without entry barriers, transient in the face of competition. That is, determining the difference between optimal and equilibrium prices has little role in establishing the legality of an action in a monopolization case (although it may have an important role in determining the requisite question of whether a firm has market power). Still, one could well imagine that two-sided market economics could make a contribution here. For instance, exclusive dealing enforces usage of a single platform. In our discussion of the strategy of pricing, we saw that when agents on one side use a single platform in a multi-platform context, price competition between platforms is particularly intense on that side. Similarly, tying the purchase of one product to the purchase of another may allow for a form of price discrimination, which increases value extraction on one side and, in a two-sided market, leads to lower prices on the other. Thus, exclusive dealing and tying potentially have added benefits in a two-sided market that might be important counterpoints to the standard antitrust criticism that they may create entry barriers.<sup>5</sup>

As a concrete example of where two-sided markets seem to matter and where they do not, consider interchange fees, which (as discussed earlier) determine how much revenue a consumer's bank collects from a merchant's bank on any transaction. The interchange fee is set collectively by member banks, which raises questions about collusion. This issue is governed by the treatment of joint ventures, in which collective action is legal if the joint venture is necessary to make a product available, since more products are presumed to make a market more competitive. The U.S. antitrust case that dealt most directly with these issues is National Bancard Corp.(Nabanco) v. Visa U.S.A., Inc. (779 F.2d 592 [11th Cir. 1986]). In the court's view, the alternative to the collective setting of the interchange fee was to have independent bilateral negotiation between banks serving merchants and consumers, in which case, consumers and merchants must know whether their banks had an agreement before attempting a payment. The court deemed that system unworkable, and hence the collectively set interchange fee was legal as it was necessary to provide the Visa card.

In this paper, I do not seek to reargue or revisit the question of whether the interchange fee should be treated as an anticompetitive violation. Rather I wish to draw attention to the ambiguous role of the economics of two-sided markets. On one hand, the court recognized the value of a centralized platform for payments. Also, its final decision may have been influenced by the idea of the potential efficiency of an interchange fee in a two-sided market. However, the technical legal question was about cooperation and the nature of the Visa association, not about two-sided markets. Once the court established that setting an interchange fee is legal, it did not inquire into whether Visa set the optimal interchange fee. Hence, the price-measurement issues associated with two-sided markets had a limited role.

This approach contrasts with a similar case in Europe. In December 2007, the European Commission ruled that the interchange fee at MasterCard (for cross-border transaction) is collusive and illegal. Why this difference? The EC considered the alternative to a jointly set interchange fee to be an interchange fee that was regulated to be zero (rather than bilateral negotiations). Since MasterCard can exist with a zero-interchange fee, the exemption to the joint behavior was eliminated. However, in making the decision, the EC explicitly recognized that a zero-interchange fee is probably not optimal, a point that can be derived from models of two-sided markets. Moreover, the EC stated that a comprehensive study of the market establishing the efficiency of MasterCard interchange rates would be a sufficient defense. Although conducting such a study is a daunting prospect, it would clearly involve two-sided issues. Hence, two-sided market issues become important when the court includes price computations in questions of legality. For a more comprehensive discussion of international policy toward payment cards, see Weiner and Wright (2005) and Bradford and Hayashi (2008).

<sup>5</sup> Price calculations are extremely important for prosecuting predatory pricing. However, U.S. courts have set an extremely high standard for proving predatory pricing at least since Brooke Group v. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp (509 U.S. 209 [1993]). As such, it is unlikely that the theory of two-sided markets will have much effect here, although there is some movement to make predatory pricing easier to prosecute (Brodley, Bolton, and Riordan, 2000).

The famous case that the U.S. Department of Justice brought against Microsoft also exemplifies these issues. As is standard in monopolization cases, the government first attempted to establish that Microsoft had market power. Here, pricing issues were crucial and two-sided market concerns were relatively important. For instance, Microsoft argued that its price was well below what a monopoly would charge given reasonable assumptions on demand and marginal cost. The government countered that much of the profit was collected in the applications market, which is an issue involving two-sided markets. However, once market power was established, the case hinged on whether tying the browser to the operating system created an entry barrier into the operating system market. The importance of two-sided markets here is ambiguous. The government claimed that Microsoft's motivation for tying relied on two-sided thinking: Microsoft's tie reduced Netscape's importance, which prevented Netscape from easily entering the operating systems market with a compatible browser. However, the legal issue was to compare the consumer benefits from Microsoft's integrated product to the losses resulting from a weakened Netscape. Pricing was not a primary issue in this calculation, and it is unclear that two-sided market economics offers much guidance.

In general, my prediction is that two-sided analysis will grow in importance in areas where pricing analysis is important, whereas the effect will be more limited in exclusionary conduct cases such as monopolization and conditional sales.

Regulation

Pricing issues are the main thrust of a great deal of economic regulation, and as such, the economics of two-sided markets can make a large contribution. Classic price regulation involved large regulatory commissions with research staffs trying to measure marginal cost and demand in an attempt to determine optimal prices. One could imagine such a staff attempting to determine optimal prices in a two-sided market as well, where the staff would have to investigate demand and cross-price elasticities on both sides, as well as cost.<sup>6</sup>

If there is no antitrust violation in setting interchange fees but the equilibrium outcome diverges from the social optimum (as in Rochet and Tirole, 2002), then price regulation may be a reasonable solution. Several countries have followed this approach. In Australia, legislation supports the direct determination of the interchange fee at bank associations (Visa and Mastercard) by the Reserve Bank of Australia. Numerous other countries have moved in this direction.

<sup>6</sup> For a concrete example, consider the policy of "net neutrality," which restricts pricing by Internet service providers to content providers on the Internet. The Internet service providers can be seen as platforms matching Internet users to content providers and hence, the concept of net neutrality is often evaluated from the perspective of two-sided markets. See Lee and Wu in this issue for more on these issues.

Economic theory suggests that any determination of the optimal interchange fee should consider the marginal costs of serving both consumers and merchants as well as price elasticities of demand and interaction elasticities of demand to usage on the other side of the market. Further considerations might be the government (or total social) costs of alternative payment systems that consumers would use. For instance, cash is more costly to process than credit card payments, whereas electronic debit is cheaper (Reserve Bank of Australia, 2007). In fact, the Reserve Bank of Australia (2006) sets interchange fees based on the average cost of banks serving consumers (as explained at http://www.rba.gov.au/MediaReleases/2006/Pdf/mr\_06\_02\_creditcard\_standard.pdf)). The interchange fees imposed in Australia may or may not raise social welfare, but the process for determining the fee surely diverges from the prescription of the economics of two-sided markets. The economics of two-sided markets can play an important role in guiding the determination of the optimal fee, although it does not appear to have done so to date.

An interesting contrast in the treatment of banking fees is in the market for automated teller machines. A network of ATMs is two-sided in the sense that it is more valuable to consumers if it can reach more banks and more valuable to banks if more consumers use it, which is often a function of how many locations a network reaches. While early networks of ATMs were proprietary, banks recognized the value of compatibility early on, and formed networks that served groups of banks. These often involved interchange fees, so that the consumer's bank paid the owner of the ATM for each transaction. In addition, the owner of the ATM could charge a consumer a surcharge for using the machine. These surcharges were federally regulated to zero early in the industry's development but were deregulated in 1996. What followed was a massive increase in the number of ATMs. Knittel and Stango (2008) argue that deregulating surcharges for ATMs had a major role in causing the expansion. Hence, fees were deregulated in this market, in contrast with the current trend toward regulation in payment cards. Furthermore, increased prices led to more consumer usage rather than less because ATMs were much more conveniently located.

Conclusion

The literature on two-sided markets is developing rapidly. To this point, the major focus of the economic research on two-sided markets has been to address how the intermediary (or "the platform") sets prices for both sides of the market simultaneously. A great deal more could be done on this topic. Less well studied are a number of other important choices, like the choice over how open to be, or how many sides of the market to allow. The literature has important policy implications for pricing analysis, an important feature of regulation and a large part of antitrust analysis.

■ I thank Mark Armstrong, David Evans, Marshall Van Alstyne, Pai Ying Li, and Glen Weyl for helpful comments.

References

- Aghion, Philippe, Nick Bloom, Richard Blundell, Rachel Griffith, and Peter Howitt. 2005. "Competition and Innovation: An Inverted U Relationship." Quarterly Journal of Economics, 120(2): 701–728.
- Anderson, Simon P., and Jean J. Gabzewicz. 2006. "The Media and Advertising: A Tale of Two-Sided Markets." In Handbook of the Economics of Art and Culture, Volume I, ed. Victor A. Ginsburgh and David Throsby, chap. 18. Boston: Elsevier.
- Armstrong, Mark. 2006. "Competition in Two-Sided Markets." The RAND Journal of Economics, 37(3): 668–91.
- Augereau, Angelique, Shane Greenstein, and Marc Rysman. 2006. "Coordination vs. Differentiation in a Standards War: 56K Modems." The RAND Journal of Economics, 37(4): 771–88.
- Boudreau, Kevin. 2007. "Does Opening a Platform Stimulate Innovation? The Effect on Systemic and Modular Innovations." MIT Sloan Research Paper 4611-06. Available at SSRN: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=913402>.
- Bradford, Terri, and Fumiko Hayashi. 2008. "Developments in Interchange Fees in the United States and Abroad." Payment System Research Briefing. Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, April. <http://www.kansascityfed.org/Publicat/PSR/Briefings/PSR-BriefingApr08.pdf>.
- Brodley, Joseph F., Patrick Bolton, and Michael H. Riordan. 2000. "Predatory Pricing: Strategic Theory and Legal Policy." Georgetown Law Journal, vol. 88, pp. 2239–330.
- Caillaud, Bernard, and Bruno Jullien. 2003. "Chicken & Egg: Competition among Intermediation Service Providers." The RAND Journal of Economics, 34(2): 309–28.
- Chou, Chien-fu, and Oz Shy. 1990. "Network Effects without Network Externalities." International Journal of Industrial Organization, 8(2): 259–70.
- Church, Jeffrey, and Neil Gandal. 1992. "Network Effects, Software Provision, and Standardization." Journal of Industrial Economics, 40(1): 85–103.
- Church, Jeffrey, and Neil Gandal. 1993. "Complementary Network Externalities and Technological Adoption." International Journal of Industrial Organization, 11(2): 239–60.
- Corts, Ken, and Mara Lederman. Forthcoming. "Software Exclusivity and Indirect Network Effects in the US Home Video Game Industry." International Journal of Industrial Organization.
- Cusumano, Michael, Yiorgos Mylonadis, and Richard Rosenbloom. 1992. "Strategic Maneuvering and Mass Market Dynamics: The Triumph of VHS over Beta." The Business History Review, 66(1): 51–94.
- Damiano, Ettore, and Hao Li. 2008. "Competing Matchmaking." Journal of the European Economic Association, 6(4): 789–818.
- Eisenmann, Thomas R., and Andrei Hagiu. 2007. "Staging Two-Sided Platforms." Harvard Business School Case Study.
- Ellison, Glenn, and Sara Fisher Ellison. 2009. "Search, Obfuscation and Price Elasticities on the Internet." Econometrica, 77(20): 427–52.
- Ellison, Glenn, and Drew Fudenberg. 2003. "Knife-Edge or Plateau: When Do Market Models Tip?" Quarterly Journal of Economics, 118(4): 1249–78.
- Evans, David S. 2003. "The Antitrust Economics of Multi-Sided Platform Markets." Yale Journal on Regulation, 20(2): 325–81.
- Evans, David S., and Michael D. Noel. 2005. "Analyzing Market Definition and Power in Multi-sided Platform Markets." Available at SSRN: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=835504>.
- Federal Trade Commission. 2009. Webpage titled "III. How Do Courts and Agencies Evaluate Market Power?" <http://www.ftc.gov/opp/jointvent/classic3.shtm>.
- Greenstein, Shane, and Marc Rysman. 2007. "Coordination Costs and Standard Setting: Lessons from 56K Modems." In Standards and Public Policy, ed. S. Greenstein and V. Stango. Journal of the European Economic Association, 123–59. Cambridge University Press.
- Hagiu, Andrei, and Bruno Julien. 2008. "Why Do Intermediaries Divert Search?" Harvard Business School Working Paper, No. 08-010.
- Hannan, Timothy H., Elizabeth K. Kiser, Robin A. Prager, and James J. McAndrews. 2003. "To Surcharge or Not to Surcharge: An Empirical Investigation of ATM Pricing." Review of Economics and Statistics, 85(4): 990–1002.
- Knittel, Chris, and Victor Stango. 2008. "Incompatibility, Product Attributes, and Consumer Welfare: Evidence from ATMs." The B. E. Journal of Economic Analysis & Policy, 8(1): Article 1.
- Kretschmer, Tobias. 2008. "Splintering and Inertia in Network Industries." Journal of Industrial Economics, 56(4): 685–706.
- Kretschmer, Tobias, and Katrin Muehlfeld. 2004. "Co-opetition in Standard-Setting: The Case of the Compact Disc." NET Institute Working Paper No. 04-14. Available at SSRN: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=618484>.

Lee, Robin. 2008. "Vertical Integration and Exclusivity in Platform and Two-Sided Markets." <http://pages.stern.nyu.edu/~rslee/papers/VIExclusivity.pdf>.

Parker, Geoffrey, and Marshall Van Alstyne. 2000. "Information Complements, Substitutes and Strategic Product Design." Available at SSRN: <http://ssrn.com/abstract=249585>.

Parker, Geoffrey, and Marshall Van Alstyne. 2005. "Two-Sided Network Effects: A Theory of Information Product Design." Management Science, 51(10): 1494–1501.

Rochet, Jean-Charles, and Jean Tirole. 2002. "Cooperation among Competitors: Some Economics of Payment Card Associations." RAND Journal of Economics, 33(4): 549–70.

Rochet, Jean-Charles, and Jean Tirole. 2003. "Platform Competition in Two-Sided Markets." Journal of the European Economic Association, 1(4): 990–1029.

Rochet, Jean-Charles, and Jean Tirole. 2006. "Two-Sided Markets: A Progress Report." The RAND Journal of Economics, 35(3): 645–67.

Reserve Bank of Australia. 2006. Notice titled "Payment Systems (Regulation) Act of 1998: Variation of Interchange Standard as it Applies to the MasterCard and Visa Systems." April, 24. http://www.rba.gov.au/MediaReleases/2006/Pdf/mr\_06\_02\_creditcard\_standard.pdf.

Reserve Bank of Australia. 2007. "Payment Costs in Australia." November.

Rust, John, and George Hall. 2003. "Middlemen versus Market Makers: A Theory of Competitive Exchange." Journal of Political Economy, 111(2): 353–403.

Rysman, Marc. 2004. "Competition between Networks: A Study of the Market for Yellow Pages." Review of Economic Studies, 71(2): 483–512.

Rysman, Marc. 2007a. "An Empirical Analysis of Payment Card Usage." Journal of Industrial Economics, 55(1): 1–36.

Rysman, Marc. 2007b. "The Empirics of Antitrust in Two-Sided Markets." Competition Policy International, 3(1): 197–209.

Weiner, Stuart E., and Julian Wright. 2005. "Interchange Fees in Various Countries: Developments and Determinants." Review of Network Economics, 4(4): 290–323.

Weyl, E. Glen. 2009. "The Price Theory of Two-Sided Markets." Available at SSRN: http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract\_id=1324317.

This article has been cited by:

1. Mohammad Nabil Almunawar, Muhammad Anshari, Syamimi Ariif Lim. Observing Digital Marketplaces of Agricultural Products in Indonesia 179-192. [Crossref]
2. Mohammad Nabil Almunawar, Muhammad Anshari. Expanding Peer-to-Peer Digital Intermediation Through a Mobile-Based Platform 549-569. [Crossref]
3. M. Mahdi Tavalaei. 2020. Waiting time in two-sided platforms: The case of the airport industry. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 159, 120181. [Crossref]
4. Sahar Fekih Romdhane, Chokri Aloui, Khaïreddine Jebi. 2020. On the Net Neutrality Efficiency under Congestion Price Discrimination. Networks and Spatial Economics 20:3, 833-872. [Crossref]
5. Hyunkyu Park, Sojung Kim, Yujin Jeong, Tim Minshall. 2020. Customer entrepreneurship on digital platforms: Challenges and solutions for platform business models. Creativity and Innovation Management 46. . [Crossref]
6. Ying Han. 2020. A Tripartite Evolutionary Game Analysis of Enterprises' Behaviour in the Platform Ecosystem. Discrete Dynamics in Nature and Society 2020, 1-10. [Crossref]
7. Filippo Oncini, Emanuela Bozzini, Francesca Forno, Natalia Magnani. 2020. Towards food platforms? An analysis of online food provisioning services in Italy. Geoforum 114, 172-180. [Crossref]
8. Sang-Jin Ahn. 2020. Three characteristics of technology competition by IoT-driven digitization. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 157, 120062. [Crossref]
9. Francesco Ducci. Natural Monopolies in Digital Platform Markets 32, . [Crossref]
10. Yeon W. Lee, Hwy-Chang Moon, Wenyang Yin. 2020. Innovation process in the business ecosystem: the four cooperations practices in the media platform. Business Process Management Journal ahead-of-print:ahead-of-print. . [Crossref]
11. V. Kumar, Nandini Nim, Amit Agarwal. 2020. Platform-based mobile payments adoption in emerging and developed countries: Role of country-level heterogeneity and network effects. Journal of International Business Studies 22. . [Crossref]
12. Yung-Ming Cheng. 2020. Why do customers intend to continue using internet-based sharing economy service platforms? Roles of network externality and service quality. Journal of Asia Business Studies ahead-of-print:ahead-of-print. . [Crossref]
13. I. V. Danilin, Z. A. Mamedyarov. 2020. The Role of Global Platforms in Advancing Digital Transformation: Competence and Innovation Aspects. MGIMO Review of International Relations 13:3, 267-282. [Crossref]
14. Johannes Winter. 2020. The evolutionary and disruptive potential of Industrie 4.0. Hungarian Geographical Bulletin 69:2, 83-97. [Crossref]
15. Hung-Hao Chang, D. Daniel Sokol. 2020. How incumbents respond to competition from innovative disruptors in the sharing economy—The impact of Airbnb on hotel performance. Strategic Management Journal 21. . [Crossref]
16. Kirill Simonov. Two-sided market as technological template for exhibition business model . [Crossref]
17. P. Mary Jeyanthi. THEORIES OF CRYPTOCURRENCY, BLOCKCHAIN AND DISTRIBUTED SYSTEMS AND ENVIRONMENTAL IMPLICATIONS 215-238. [Crossref]
18. Daniel Trabucchi, Tommaso Buganza. 2020. Fostering digital platform innovation: From two to multi-sided platforms. Creativity and Innovation Management 29:2, 345-358. [Crossref]
19. Raoul Hentschel. Developing Design Principles for a Cloud Broker Platform for SMEs 290-299. [Crossref]

20. Marius Schwartz, Daniel R. Vincent. 2020. Platform Competition With Cash-Back Rebates Under No Surcharge Rules. The Journal of Industrial Economics 68:2, 298-327. [Crossref]
21. Hang Lee, Yung-Chang Hsiao, Chung-Jen Chen, Ruey-Shan Guo. 2020. Virtual vs physical platform: organizational capacity and slack, strategic decision and firm performance. Journal of Business & Industrial Marketing ahead-of-print:ahead-of-print. . [Crossref]
22. Gary Dushnitsky, Evila Piva, Cristina Rossi-Lamastra. 2020. Investigating the mix of strategic choices and performance of transaction platforms: Evidence from the crowdfunding setting. Strategic Management Journal 19. . [Crossref]
23. Zhixuan Fang, Longbo Huang, Adam Wierman. 2020. Loyalty programs in the sharing economy: Optimality and competition. Performance Evaluation 102105. [Crossref]
24. Siobhan O'Mahony, Rebecca Karp. 2020. From proprietary to collective governance: How do platform participation strategies evolve?. Strategic Management Journal 49. . [Crossref]
25. Koen Frenken, Taneli Vaskelainen, Lea Fünfschilling, Laura Piscicelli. An Institutional Logics Perspective on the Gig Economy 83-105. [Crossref]
26. Wenche Wang, Fan Li, Zelong Yi. 2020. Applying a platform to expand sales. Journal of the Operational Research Society 15, 1-16. [Crossref]
27. I. V. Danilin. 2020. The Impact of Digital Technologies on Leadership in Global Processes: from Platforms to Markets?. MGIMO Review of International Relations 13:1, 100-116. [Crossref]
28. Marco Ardolino, Nicola Saccani, Federico Adrodegari, Marco Perona. 2020. A Business Model Framework to Characterize Digital Multisided Platforms. Journal of Open Innovation: Technology, Market, and Complexity 6:1, 10. [Crossref]
29. Masakazu Ishihara, Eitan Muller. 2020. Software piracy and outsourcing in two-sided markets. Quantitative Marketing and Economics 18:1, 61-124. [Crossref]
30. Cristina Alaimo, Jannis Kallinikos, Erika Valderrama. 2020. Platforms as service ecosystems: Lessons from social media. Journal of Information Technology 35:1, 25-48. [Crossref]
31. Nada Belhadj, Didier Laussel, Joana Resende. 2020. Marketplace or reselling? A signalling model. Information Economics and Policy 50, 100834. [Crossref]
32. Katharina Pistor. 2020. Statehood in the digital age 1. Constellations 27:1, 3-18. [Crossref]
33. Dirk Nicolas Wagner. 2020. The nature of the Artificially Intelligent Firm - An economic investigation into changes that AI brings to the firm. Telecommunications Policy 101954. [Crossref]
34. Barbara Hartl, Bernadette Kamleitner, Sandra Holub. 2020. Take me on a ride: The role of environmentalist identity for carpooling. Psychology & Marketing 19. . [Crossref]
35. Barna Bakó, Diána Horváth. 2020. Termékdifferenciálás kétoldalú piacokon. Közgazdasági Szemle 67:1, 1-13. [Crossref]
36. Vincenzo Vignieri. 2020. Crowdsourcing as a mode of open innovation: Exploring drivers of success of a multisided platform through system dynamics modelling. Systems Research and Behavioral Science 22. . [Crossref]
37. Oliver Hinz, Thomas Otter, Bernd Skiera. 2020. Estimating Network Effects in Two-Sided Markets. Journal of Management Information Systems 37:1, 12-38. [Crossref]
38. Eduard Josep Alvarez-Palau, Marta Viu-Roig, Josep Reixach Molet. How Do Food Delivery Platforms Affect Urban Logistics? 221-238. [Crossref]
39. Sovik Mukherjee. How to Tax a Monopoly Platform in a Product Differentiation Set-Up? 616-639. [Crossref]
40. Francesco Bogliacino, Cristiano Codagnone, Valeria Cirillo, Dario Guarascio. Quantity and Quality of Work in the Platform Economy 1-28. [Crossref]

41. Dirk Nicolas Wagner. 2020. Economic patterns in a world with artificial intelligence. Evolutionary and Institutional Economics Review 17:1, 111-131. [Crossref]
42. Mikko Hänninen, Lauri Paavola. Digital Platforms and Industry Change 213-226. [Crossref]
43. Daniel Trabucchi. 2020. Let's Get a Two-Sided Platform Started. Journal of Business Ecosystems 1:1, 63-77. [Crossref]
44. Sovik Mukherjee. Taxing the 'Un'Taxed Digital Economy with a Focus on India: Decoding the Outsourced Holding Company Model 631-647. [Crossref]
45. Raoul Hentschel, Susanne Strahringer. A Broker-Based Framework for the Recommendation of Cloud Services: A Research Proposal 409-415. [Crossref]
46. Amanda Athayde. 2020. Direito da concorrência e supermercados: como essas plataformas de dois lados podem trazer riscos aos consumidores?. Revista Direito GV 16:1. . [Crossref]
47. Xiaoyang Li, Haitian Lu, Iftekhhar Hasan. 2020. The Dark Side of Unregulated Artificial Intelligence: Evidence from Online Marketplace Lending. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
48. Yannick Bartens, Hashim Iqbal Chunpir, Frederik Schulte, Stefan Voß. Business/IT Alignment in Two-Sided Markets 1123-1146. [Crossref]
49. Josef Wieland. Introduction: Relational Economy and Economic Theory 1-14. [Crossref]
50. M. Trofimchuk, O. Bondar, V. Novikova, O. Savchuk, O. Tkachenko. 2019. Tools for attracting buyers to e-commerce resources. Ekonomika ta upravlinnâ APK :2(151), 6-15. [Crossref]
51. Tim P. Vos, Frank Michael Russell. 2019. Theorizing Journalism's Institutional Relationships: An Elaboration of Gatekeeping Theory. Journalism Studies 20:16, 2331-2348. [Crossref]
52. William W. Baber, Arto Ojala, Ricardo Martinez. 2019. Effectuation logic in digital business model transformation. Journal of Small Business and Enterprise Development 26:6/7, 811-830. [Crossref]
53. Abhinav Sharma, Juan L. Nicolau. 2019. Hotels to OTAs: "Hands off my rates!" The economic consequences of the rate parity legislative actions in Europe and the US. Tourism Management 75, 427-434. [Crossref]
54. Satish Nambisan, Shaker A. Zahra, Yadong Luo. 2019. Global platforms and ecosystems: Implications for international business theories. Journal of International Business Studies 50:9, 1464-1486. [Crossref]
55. Zhixuan Fang, Longbo Huang, Adam Wierman. 2019. Prices and subsidies in the sharing economy. Performance Evaluation 136, 102037. [Crossref]
56. Moshe A. Barach, Aseem Kaul, Ming D. Leung, Sibö Lu. 2019. Strategic Redundancy in the Use of Big Data: Evidence from a Two-Sided Labor Market. Strategy Science 4:4, 298-322. [Crossref]
57. Timothy Simcoe, Jeremy Watson. 2019. Forking, Fragmentation, and Splintering. Strategy Science 4:4, 283-297. [Crossref]
58. Sören Wallbach, Katrin Coleman, Ralf Elbert, Alexander Benlian. 2019. Multi-sided platform diffusion in competitive B2B networks: inhibiting factors and their impact on network effects. Electronic Markets 29:4, 693-710. [Crossref]
59. Kyungmin Choi, Sunghan Ryu, Daegon Cho. 2019. When a loss becomes a gain: different effects of substitute versus complementary loss leaders in a multi-sided platform. Electronic Markets 29:4, 681-691. [Crossref]
60. Mikail KAR. 2019. İki Taraflı Piyasalar: OECD Mobil Telekomünikasyon Piyasaları'nda Su Yatağı Etkisi Örneği. Selçuk Üniversitesi Sosyal Bilimler Meslek Yüksekokulu Dergisi 383-396. [Crossref]
61. Sen Li, Hamidreza Tavafighi, Kameshwar Poolla, Pravin Varaiya. 2019. Regulating TNCs: Should Uber and Lyft set their own rules?. Transportation Research Part B: Methodological 129, 193-225. [Crossref]

62. Hai Wang, Hai Yang. 2019. Ridesourcing systems: A framework and review. Transportation Research Part B: Methodological 129, 122-155. [Crossref]
63. Tianle Song, Susheng Wang. 2019. Network effects, trade, and productivity. Managerial and Decision Economics 40:7, 815-822. [Crossref]
64. Paolo Roma, Maria Vasi. 2019. Diversification and performance in the mobile app market: The role of the platform ecosystem. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 147, 123-139. [Crossref]
65. Junic Kim, Jaewook Yoo. 2019. Platform Growth Model: The Four Stages of Growth Model. Sustainability 11:20, 5562. [Crossref]
66. Xu, Ahokangas, Turunen, Mäntymäki, Heikkilä. 2019. Platform-Based Business Models: Insights from an Emerging Ai-Enabled Smart Building Ecosystem. Electronics 8:10, 1150. [Crossref]
67. Jon Frost, Leonardo Gambacorta, Yi Huang, Hyun Song Shin, Pablo Zbinden. 2019. BigTech and the changing structure of financial intermediation. Economic Policy 34:100, 761-799. [Crossref]
68. Abraham K. Song. 2019. The Digital Entrepreneurial Ecosystem—a critique and reconfiguration. Small Business Economics 53:3, 569-590. [Crossref]
69. Yonghua Ji, Ruibing Wang, Qinglong Gou. 2019. Monetization on Mobile Platforms: Balancing in-App Advertising and User Base Growth. Production and Operations Management 28:9, 2202-2220. [Crossref]
70. Dawoon Jung, Byung Cho Kim, Myungsub Park, Detmar W. Straub. 2019. Innovation and Policy Support for Two-Sided Market Platforms: Can Government Policy Makers and Executives Optimize Both Societal Value and Profits?. Information Systems Research 30:3, 1037-1050. [Crossref]
71. Kim, Min. 2019. Supplier, Tailor, and Facilitator: Typology of Platform Business Models. Journal of Open Innovation: Technology, Market, and Complexity 5:3, 57. [Crossref]
72. Jason M. Walter. 2019. Regulating mediators of internet piracy: P2P websites and cyberlockers. Digital Policy, Regulation and Governance 21:5, 494-509. [Crossref]
73. Charles Angelucci, Julia Cagé. 2019. Newspapers in Times of Low Advertising Revenues. American Economic Journal: Microeconomics 11:3, 319-364. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
74. Koen Frenken, Arnoud Waes, Peter Pelzer, Magda Smink, Rinie Est. 2019. Safeguarding Public Interests in the Platform Economy. Policy & Internet 125. . [Crossref]
75. Justus Haucap. 2019. Competition and Competition Policy in a Data-Driven Economy. Intereconomics 54:4, 201-208. [Crossref]
76. Bruno Jullien, Alessandro Pavan. 2019. Information Management and Pricing in Platform Markets. The Review of Economic Studies 86:4, 1666-1703. [Crossref]
77. Jonas Wanner, Carsten Bauer, Christian Janiesch. Two-Sided Digital Markets: Disruptive Chance Meets Chicken or Egg Causality Dilemma 335-344. [Crossref]
78. Sandip Mukhopadhyay, Harry Bouwman. 2019. Orchestration and governance in digital platform ecosystems: a literature review and trends. Digital Policy, Regulation and Governance 21:4, 329-351. [Crossref]
79. Angelo Presenza, Tindara Abbate, Fabrizio Cesaroni, Francesco Paolo Appio. 2019. Enacting Social Crowdfunding Business Ecosystems: The case of the platform Meridonare. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 143, 190-201. [Crossref]
80. Joshua D. Wright, John M. Yun. 2019. Burdens and Balancing in Multisided Markets: The First Principles Approach of Ohio v. American Express. Review of Industrial Organization 54:4, 717-740. [Crossref]
81. Paul Belleflamme, Martin Peitz. 2019. Platform competition: Who benefits from multihoming?. International Journal of Industrial Organization 64, 1-26. [Crossref]

82. A N Mitin, K O Sokolov, R I Garipov, M I Sokolova. 2019. Innovation development of agroindustrial enterprises: the use of a platform-based business model. IOP Conference Series: Materials Science and Engineering 537, 042020. [Crossref]
83. Richard T. Gretz, Ashwin Malshe, Carlos Bauer, Suman Basuroy. 2019. The impact of superstar and non-superstar software on hardware sales: the moderating role of hardware lifecycle. Journal of the Academy of Marketing Science 47:3, 394-416. [Crossref]
84. Frank Michael Russell. Third-Party Platforms 1-6. [Crossref]
85. Chady Jabbour, Hélène Rey-Valette, Pierre Maurel, Jean-Michel Salles. 2019. Spatial data infrastructure management: A two-sided market approach for strategic reflections. International Journal of Information Management 45, 69-82. [Crossref]
86. Daniel Trabucchi, Luca Talenti, Tommaso Buganza. 2019. How do Big Bang Disruptors look like? A Business Model perspective. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 141, 330-340. [Crossref]
87. Yutaka Mizuno, Nobutaka Otake. 2019. An Empirical Analysis of an Organizational Continuum in a Japanese Accounting Cloud Service. International Journal of Service Science, Management, Engineering, and Technology 10:2, 1-21. [Crossref]
88. Ryosuke Kikushima. 2019. Spatial Competition among Farmers' Markets. Japanese Journal of Agricultural Economics 21:0, 20-34. [Crossref]
89. Vinicius Nardi, Felipe Zarpelon, Jorge Verschoore, Mariana de Araújo. 2019. The Multiple Bases of Social Return Platforms: Evidence of a Brazilian Initiative. International Journal of Public Administration 42:4, 310-319. [Crossref]
90. Susumu Sato. 2019. Freemium as optimal menu pricing. International Journal of Industrial Organization 63, 480-510. [Crossref]
91. Yong Chao, Chen Yao, Mao Ye. 2019. Why Discrete Price Fragments U.S. Stock Exchanges and Disperses Their Fee Structures. The Review of Financial Studies 32:3, 1068-1101. [Crossref]
92. Liqun Wen, Jia Du, Jianfang Zhang, Yao Pan. The trusted online platform of cross-border e-commerce: a managerial model 827-830. [Crossref]
93. Liang Li. 2019. Data and market definition of Internet-based businesses. Competition and Regulation in Network Industries 20:1, 54-85. [Crossref]
94. Pierre Schammo. 2019. 'Undisruption' in the SME Funding Market: Information Sharing, Finance Platforms and the UK Bank Referral Scheme. European Business Organization Law Review 20:1, 29-53. [Crossref]
95. Daniel Trabucchi, Tommaso Buganza. 2019. Data-driven innovation: switching the perspective on Big Data. European Journal of Innovation Management 22:1, 23-40. [Crossref]
96. Siddhartha Banerjee, Ramesh Johari. Ride Sharing 73-97. [Crossref]
97. Mansi Sood, Sharayu Moharir, Ankur A. Kulkarni. Pricing and Commission in Two-Sided Markets with Free Upgrades 172-195. [Crossref]
98. Zahid Rashid, Umara Noor, Jörn Altmann. Network Externalities in Cybersecurity Information Sharing Ecosystems 116-125. [Crossref]
99. Ektor Arzoglou, Tommi Elo, Pekka Nikander. The Case of iOS and Android: Applying System Dynamics to Digital Business Platforms 499-506. [Crossref]
100. Marina Ryzhkova, Andrey Glukhov. Consumer Resistance to Digitalization on the Digital Platform Market: Preliminary Analysis 113-128. [Crossref]
101. Claudia Vienken, Nizar Abdelkafi, Cyrine Tangour. Multi-sided Platforms in the Sharing Economy – A Case Study Analysis for the Development of a Generic Platform 373-386. [Crossref]

102. Lino Markfort, Sebastian Haugk, Cyrine Tangour. So You Want to Be a Platform: Where to Start? 387-396. [Crossref]
103. Klaus Backhaus, Ulf König. How Collaboration and Digitization Transform Large Project Business 207-225. [Crossref]
104. Klaus Backhaus, Ulf König, Marc Bieling. Markenmigration 525-542. [Crossref]
105. Vivek Nagraj Pandit, Datar Mandar, Manjesh K. Hanawal, Sharayu Moharir. Pricing in Ride Sharing Platforms: Static vs Dynamic Strategies 208-215. [Crossref]
106. Michael L. Katz. 2019. Platform economics and antitrust enforcement: A little knowledge is a dangerous thing. Journal of Economics & Management Strategy 28:1, 138-152. [Crossref]
107. Georg Bauer, Jil Fritz, Deborah Schanz, Michael Sixt. 2019. Corporate Income Tax Challenges Arising From Digitalised Business Models. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
108. Sandra Isabel Correia, Miguel Sousa, Elisio Fernando Moreira Brandão. 2019. Drivers of Fundraising Success in Equity Crowdfunding. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
109. Gorkem Turgut Ozer, Brad Greenwood, Anandasivam Gopal. 2019. Digital Multisided Platforms and Women's Health: An Empirical Analysis of Peer-to-Peer Lending. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
110. Jason M. Walter. 2019. Regulating Mediators of Internet Piracy: P2P Websites and Cyberlockers. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
111. Hamed Ghoddusi, Alexander Rodivilov, Baran Siyahhan. 2019. Investment in Two-Sided Markets under Technological Uncertainty. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
112. Christoph Aymanns, Mathias Dewatripont, Tarik Roukny. 2019. Vertically Disintegrated Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
113. Falk Strotebeck. Mikroökonomik im Zeitalter der Digitalisierung 175-200. [Crossref]
114. . References 169-199. [Crossref]
115. Lynne Kiesling. Chapter 4 Toward A Market Epistemology of the Platform Economy 45-70. [Crossref]
116. Dohoon Kim. 2018. Equilibrium Analysis for Platform Developers in Two-Sided Market with Backward Compatibility. Games 9:4, 76. [Crossref]
117. Bodo Herzog. 2018. Valuation of Digital Platforms: Experimental Evidence for Google and Facebook. International Journal of Financial Studies 6:4, 87. [Crossref]
118. Jerry Ellig, Paul LaFontaine, Wayne Leighton, Eric Ralph, Sean Sullivan. 2018. Economics at the FCC, 2017–2018: Internet Freedom, International Broadband Pricing Comparisons, and a New Office of Economics and Analytics. Review of Industrial Organization 53:4, 681-707. [Crossref]
119. Yuki Inoue, Masaharu Tsujimoto. 2018. New market development of platform ecosystems: A case study of the Nintendo Wii. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 136, 235-253. [Crossref]
120. Jin Wang. 2018. Quality screening and information disclosure in two-sided markets. Economics Letters 171, 183-188. [Crossref]
121. Agam Gupta, Biswatosha Saha, Parthasarathi Banerjee. 2018. Pricing decisions of car aggregation platforms in sharing economy: a developing economy perspective. Journal of Revenue and Pricing Management 17:5, 341-355. [Crossref]
122. Elizabeth Davidson, Aaron Baird, Karl Prince. 2018. Opening the envelope of health care information systems research. Information and Organization 28:3, 140-151. [Crossref]
123. Junic Kim. 2018. Platform Adoption Factors in the Internet Industry. Sustainability 10:9, 3185. [Crossref]

124. Adrien Querbes. 2018. Banned from the sharing economy: an agent-based model of a peer-to-peer marketplace for consumer goods and services. Journal of Evolutionary Economics 28:3, 633-665. [Crossref]
125. Henner Gimpel, Daniel Rau, Maximilian Röglinger. 2018. Understanding FinTech start-ups – a taxonomy of consumer-oriented service offerings. Electronic Markets 28:3, 245-264. [Crossref]
126. Peter Dell. 2018. On the dual-stacking transition to IPv6: A forlorn hope?. Telecommunications Policy 42:7, 575-581. [Crossref]
127. Ming Gao. 2018. PLATFORM PRICING IN MIXED TWO-SIDED MARKETS. International Economic Review 59:3, 1103-1129. [Crossref]
128. Junic Kim. 2018. Market entry strategy for a digital platform provider. Baltic Journal of Management 13:3, 390-406. [Crossref]
129. Michael Dinerstein, Liran Einav, Jonathan Levin, Neel Sundaresan. 2018. Consumer Price Search and Platform Design in Internet Commerce. American Economic Review 108:7, 1820-1859. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
130. Paul C. van Fenema, Bianca M. Keers. 2018. Interorganizational Performance Management: A Co-evolutionary Model. International Journal of Management Reviews 20:3, 772-799. [Crossref]
131. Thibault Séjourné, Samitha Samaranayake, Siddhartha Banerjee. 2018. The Price of Fragmentation in Mobility-on-Demand Services. Proceedings of the ACM on Measurement and Analysis of Computing Systems 2:2, 1-26. [Crossref]
132. Wenhui Fu, Qiang Wang, Xiande Zhao. 2018. Platform-based service innovation and system design: a literature review. Industrial Management & Data Systems 118:5, 946-974. [Crossref]
133. Natascha Just. 2018. Governing online platforms: Competition policy in times of platformization. Telecommunications Policy 42:5, 386-394. [Crossref]
134. SEAN H. VANATTA. 2018. Charge Account Banking: A Study of Financial Innovation in the 1950s. Enterprise & Society 19:2, 352-390. [Crossref]
135. Lei Bao, Yulin Zhang, Vitor Miguel Ribeiro. 2018. Observability of Incentive Contract and Platform Competition. Australian Economic Papers 57:2, 154-180. [Crossref]
136. Juha Winter, Sandro Battisti, Thommie Burström, Sakari Luukkainen. 2018. Exploring the Success Factors of Mobile Business Ecosystems. International Journal of Innovation and Technology Management 15:03, 1850026. [Crossref]
137. Wing Wah Tham, Elvira Sojli, Johannes A. Skjeltorp. 2018. Cross-Sided Liquidity Externalities. Management Science 64:6, 2901-2929. [Crossref]
138. Eunsuk Sung, Hongbum Kim, Daeho Lee. 2018. Why Do People Consume and Provide Sharing Economy Accommodation?—A Sustainability Perspective. Sustainability 10:6, 2072. [Crossref]
139. Christian Hopp, David Antons, Jermain Kaminski, Torsten Oliver Salge. 2018. The Topic Landscape of Disruption Research—A Call for Consolidation, Reconciliation, and Generalization. Journal of Product Innovation Management 35:3, 458-487. [Crossref]
140. Christian Stummer, Dennis Kundisch, Reinhold Decker. 2018. Platform Launch Strategies. Business & Information Systems Engineering 60:2, 167-173. [Crossref]
141. Johan Frishammar, Javier Cenamor, Harald Cavalli-Björkman, Emma Hernell, Johan Carlsson. 2018. Digital strategies for two-sided markets: A case study of shopping malls. Decision Support Systems 108, 34-44. [Crossref]
142. Sumedha Chauhan, Sandip Mukhopadhyay, Mahadeo Jaiswal. 2018. The adoption of mobile app for B2C transaction in platform marketplace: An empirical examination of key drivers. Journal of Information Technology Case and Application Research 20:1, 9-22. [Crossref]

143. Olga Dornostup, Alena Suvorova. Network Structure of e-Shops Profile as Factor of Its Success: Case of VK.com 40-50. [Crossref]
144. Michael D. Bradley, Jeff Colvin, Mary K. Perkins. Crowdsourcing the Last Mile 55-66. [Crossref]
145. Felipe Zarpelon, Vinicius Antonio Machado Nardi, Jorge Verschoore. Platforms and Public Administration 1-4. [Crossref]
146. Sven-Ove Horst, Paul Clemens Murschetz, David N. Brennan, Mike Friedrichsen. TV Film Financing in the Era of “Connected TV”: How Do “Legacy” Broadcasters Respond to Market Changes? 615-633. [Crossref]
147. Margaret Chon. Trademark Goodwill and Green Global Value Networks 275-299. [Crossref]
148. Geoffrey Parker, Marshall Van Alstyne. Platform Strategy 1290-1298. [Crossref]
149. Jed DeVaro, Oliver Gürtler. 2018. Advertising and Labor Market Matching: A Tour through the Times. Journal of Labor Economics 36:1, 253-307. [Crossref]
150. Weiwei Jiang, Lin Zhang. 2018. Evaluating the Effects of Double-Apping on the Smartphone-Based E-Hailing Service: A Simulation-Based Study. IEEE Access 6, 6654-6667. [Crossref]
151. Mansi Sood, Sharayu Moharir, Ankur A. Kulkarni. Pricing in two-sided markets in the presence of free upgrades 259-266. [Crossref]
152. YUKI INOUE, MASA HARU TSUJIMOTO. 2018. GENRES OF COMPLEMENTARY PRODUCTS IN PLATFORM-BASED MARKETS: CHANGES IN EVOLUTIONARY MECHANISMS BY PLATFORM DIFFUSION STRATEGIES. International Journal of Innovation Management 22:01, 1850004. [Crossref]
153. Zhixuan Fang, Longbo Huang, Adam Wierman. Loyalty Programs in the Sharing Economy 131-140. [Crossref]
154. Rishabh Mehrotra, James McInerney, Hugues Bouchard, Mounia Lalmas, Fernando Diaz. Towards a Fair Marketplace 2243-2251. [Crossref]
155. Andre Boik. 2018. Prediction and Identification in Two-Sided Markets. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
156. Joana Resende, Didier Laussel, Nada Belhadj. 2018. Marketplace or Reselling? A Signalling Model. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
157. Fabian Gaessler, Zhaoxin Pu. 2018. Openness as Platform Strategy - Evidence from a Quasi-Experiment in Crowdfunding. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
158. Bertin Martens, Luis Aguiar, Estrella GGmez, Frank Mueller-Langer. 2018. The Digital Transformation of News Media and the Rise of Disinformation and Fake News. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
159. Jason Huang, David H. Reiley, Nickolai M. Riabov. 2018. Measuring Consumer Sensitivity to Audio Advertising: A Field Experiment on Pandora Internet Radio. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
160. Lawrence J. White. 2018. An Assessment of the Credit Rating Agencies: Background, Analysis, and Policy. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
161. L. Lynne Kiesling. 2018. Toward a Market Epistemology of the Platform Economy. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
162. L. Lynne Kiesling, Michael C. Munger, Alexander Theisen. 2018. From Airbnb to Solar: Toward a Transaction Cost Model of a Retail Electricity Distribution Platform. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
163. Nathaniel Hilger. 2018. How Do Marketplaces Compete? The View From Stripe Connect. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

164. Prateek Goorha. 2018. A Comprehensive Contracting Solution Using Blockchains. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
165. Moshe Barach, Aseem Kaul, Ming Leung, Sibio Lu. 2018. Small Numbers Bargaining in the Age of Big Data: Evidence From a Two-Sided Labor Matching Platform. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
166. Qing Wei. 2018. Market Entry Strategies for City-Based Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
167. Alexandre Cordeiro Macedo. 2018. O CASO UBER E AS POSSÍVEIS PRATICAS RESTRITIVAS À CONCORRÊNCIA: COLUSÃO OU CONDUTA UNILATERAL? (Uber: Collusion, or Unilateral Conduct?). SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
168. Joshua D. Wright, John M. Yun. 2018. Burdens and Balancing in Multisided Markets: The First Principles Approach of Ohio v. American Express. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
169. Joan Nix, Bruce Mcnevin, David Gabel. 2018. The Internet Ecosystem and Net Neutrality Regulation: Taking it to the Edge. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
170. Massimo Maggiori. 2018. The Age of Dispossession: How EU Law Deals With the Seamless Entrusting to Third Parties of Content and Data in the Digital Age. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
171. . Digital Platforms 1-43. [\[Crossref\]](#)
172. Fernando Bernstein, Gregory DeCroix, N. Bora Keskin. 2018. Competition Between Two-Sided Platforms Under Demand and Supply Congestion Effects. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
173. Juri Mattila, Timo Seppälä. Distributed Governance in Multi-sided Platforms: A Conceptual Framework from Case: Bitcoin 183-205. [\[Crossref\]](#)
174. Vivian Vimarlund. Enablers and Facilitators for Sustainable Implementation of E-Services in Two-Sided Markets and Ecosystems 188-201. [\[Crossref\]](#)
175. . Bibliography 221-249. [\[Crossref\]](#)
176. Byung-Cheol Kim, Jeongsik “Jay” Lee, Hyunwoo Park. 2017. Two-sided platform competition with multihoming agents: An empirical study on the daily deals market. Information Economics and Policy 41, 36-53. [\[Crossref\]](#)
177. Michael Wessel, Ferdinand Thies, Alexander Benlian. 2017. Opening the Floodgates: The Implications of Increasing Platform Openness in Crowdfunding. Journal of Information Technology 32:4, 344-360. [\[Crossref\]](#)
178. Xing Wan, Javier Cenamor, Jing Chen. 2017. Exploring Performance Determinants of China’s Cable Operators and OTT Service Providers in the Era of Digital Convergence—From the Perspective of an Industry Platform. Sustainability 9:12, 2247. [\[Crossref\]](#)
179. Jens Weghake, Fabian Grabicki. 2017. The Qwerty Phenomenon: Its Relevance in a World with Creative Destruction. Review of Economic and Business Studies 10:2, 177-203. [\[Crossref\]](#)
180. David Bounie, Abel François, Leo Van Hove. 2017. Consumer Payment Preferences, Network Externalities, and Merchant Card Acceptance: An Empirical Investigation. Review of Industrial Organization 51:3, 257-290. [\[Crossref\]](#)
181. Uwe Cantner, Simone Vannuccini. 2017. Pervasive technologies and industrial linkages: Modeling acquired purposes. Structural Change and Economic Dynamics . [\[Crossref\]](#)
182. Yiyi Zhou. 2017. Bayesian Estimation of a Dynamic Model of Two-Sided Markets: Application to the U.S. Video Game Industry. Management Science 63:11, 3874-3894. [\[Crossref\]](#)
183. Georgios Zervas, Davide Proserpio, John W. Byers. 2017. The Rise of the Sharing Economy: Estimating the Impact of Airbnb on the Hotel Industry. Journal of Marketing Research 54:5, 687-705. [\[Crossref\]](#)

184. Kevin J. Boudreau. Platform Boundary Choices & Governance: Opening-Up While Still Coordinating and Orchestrating 227-297. [Crossref]
185. Raphael Amit, Xu Han. 2017. Value Creation through Novel Resource Configurations in a Digitally Enabled World. Strategic Entrepreneurship Journal 11:3, 228-242. [Crossref]
186. Chen Hajaj, David Sarne. 2017. Selective opportunity disclosure at the service of strategic information platforms. Autonomous Agents and Multi-Agent Systems 31:5, 1133-1164. [Crossref]
187. Alberto Nucciarelli, Feng Li, Kiran J. Fernandes, Nikolaos Goumagias, Ignazio Cabras, Sam Devlin, Daniel Kudenko, Peter Cowling. 2017. From value chains to technological platforms: The effects of crowdfunding in the digital game industry. Journal of Business Research 78, 341-352. [Crossref]
188. Aqib Aslam, Alpa Shah. 2017. Taxation and the Peer-to-Peer Economy. IMF Working Papers 17:187. . [Crossref]
189. Yutaka Mizuno, Nobutaka Otake. A Case Study of an Organizational Continuum of a Technological Platform in a Japanese Accounting Cloud Service 1-11. [Crossref]
190. Jihui Chen, Qiang Fu. 2017. Do exclusivity arrangements harm consumers?. Journal of Regulatory Economics 51:3, 311-339. [Crossref]
191. Yong Chao, Chen Yao, Mao Ye. 2017. Discrete Pricing and Market Fragmentation: A Tale of Two-Sided Markets. American Economic Review 107:5, 196-199. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
192. Xing Wan, Javier Cenamor, Geoffrey Parker, Marshall Van Alstyne. 2017. Unraveling Platform Strategies: A Review from an Organizational Ambidexterity Perspective. Sustainability 9:5, 734. [Crossref]
193. Diane Coyle. 2017. Precarious and Productive Work in the Digital Economy. National Institute Economic Review 240, R5-R14. [Crossref]
194. Sampsa Ruutu, Thomas Casey, Ville Kotovirta. 2017. Development and competition of digital service platforms: A system dynamics approach. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 117, 119-130. [Crossref]
195. Brian Goff, Dennis Wilson, David Zimmer. 2017. MOVIES, MASS CONSUMERS, AND CRITICS: ECONOMICS AND POLITICS OF A TWO-SIDED MARKET. Contemporary Economic Policy 35:2, 269-277. [Crossref]
196. Daniel Trabucchi, Tommaso Buganza, Elena Pellizzoni. 2017. Give Away Your Digital Services. Research-Technology Management 60:2, 43-52. [Crossref]
197. Subhasish M. Chowdhury, Stephen Martin. 2017. Exclusivity and exclusion on platform Markets. Journal of Economics 120:2, 95-118. [Crossref]
198. Sang M. Lee, Na Rang Kim, Soon Goo Hong. 2017. Key success factors for mobile app platform activation. Service Business 11:1, 207-227. [Crossref]
199. Seth Freedman, Ginger Zhe Jin. 2017. The information value of online social networks: Lessons from peer-to-peer lending. International Journal of Industrial Organization 51, 185-222. [Crossref]
200. Wing Man Wynne Lam. 2017. Switching Costs in Two-Sided Markets. The Journal of Industrial Economics 65:1, 136-182. [Crossref]
201. Daniel Flores, Vitaliy Kalashnikov. 2017. Parking Discounts: Price Discrimination with Different Marginal Costs. Review of Industrial Organization 50:1, 91-103. [Crossref]
202. Roger R. Betancourt, Raquel Chocarro, Monica Cortiñas, Margarita Elorz, Jose Miguel Mugica. 2017. Private Sales Clubs: A 21st Century Distribution Channel. Journal of Interactive Marketing 37, 44-56. [Crossref]

203. Antje-Mareike Dietrich. 2017. Platform intermediation to sponsor alternative fuel vehicles. Transport Policy 54, 90-99. [Crossref]
204. David P. McIntyre, Arati Srinivasan. 2017. Networks, platforms, and strategy: Emerging views and next steps. Strategic Management Journal 38:1, 141-160. [Crossref]
205. Christian Handke, Paul Stepan, Ruth Towse. Cultural Economics, the Internet and Participation 295-310. [Crossref]
206. Paul Clemens Murschetz. Connected TV: Conceptualizing the Fit Between Convergence and Organizational Strategy Within a Contingency Theory Framework: The Case of Germany 261-283. [Crossref]
207. Shani Alkoby, David Sarne. Strategic Free Information Disclosure for a Vickrey Auction 1-18. [Crossref]
208. Karl Täuscher, Romy Hilbig, Nizar Abdelkafi. Geschäftsmodellelemente mehrseitiger Plattformen 179-211. [Crossref]
209. Rebecca Jung, Dubravko Radic, Marija Radic. Preissetzung bei mehrseitigen Plattformen: Theoretische Überlegungen und empirische Befunde am Beispiel einer Seniorenplattform 51-66. [Crossref]
210. V. Vimarlund, T. Mettler. Introduction to the Ecosystem for Two-Sided Markets, Barriers and Facilitators 3-15. [Crossref]
211. Stefano Ugolini. The Payment System 21-100. [Crossref]
212. Zhixuan Fang, Longbo Huang, Adam Wierman. Prices and Subsidies in the Sharing Economy 53-62. [Crossref]
213. Luciano Fanti, Domenico Buccella. 2017. Cournot and Bertrand Competition in the Software Industry. Economics Research International 2017, 1-10. [Crossref]
214. NNstor Duch-Brown, Bertin Martens, Frank Mueller-Langer. 2017. The Economics of Ownership, Access and Trade in Digital Data. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
215. Zoltan J. Acs, Fiona Sussan. 2017. The Digital Entrepreneurial Ecosystem. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
216. Kevin Boudreau. 2017. Platform-Based Organization and Boundary Choices: 'Opening-Up' While Still Coordinating and Orchestrating. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
217. Qihong Liu, Oksana Loginova, X. Henry Wang. 2017. The Impact of Multi-Homing in a Ride-Hailing Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
218. David Bounie, Abel Francois, Leo Van Hove. 2017. Merchant Acceptance of Payment Cards: Must Takee or Wanna Takee?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
219. Stephane Ciriani, Marc Lebourges. 2017. The Market Dominance of US Digital Platforms: Antitrust Implications for the European Union. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
220. Abhishek Ray, Hossein Ghasemkhani, Karthik Natarajan Kannan. 2017. Ad-Blockers: Extortionists or Digital Age Robin Hoods?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
221. David S. Evans, Richard Schmalensee. 2017. Why the Claim that Markets with Two-Sided Platforms Become One-Sided When They Mature is Wrong. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
222. Guofu Tan, Junjie Zhou. 2017. Price Competition in Multi-Sided Markets. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
223. Zhan (Michael) Shi, T. S. Raghu. 2017. Platform Recommendation in Search Markets: Theory and Evidence from the Mobile App Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
224. Marius Schwartz, Daniel R. Vincent. 2017. Platform Competition With User Rebates Under No Surcharge Rules. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

225. Jan Kraemer, Daniel Schnurr, Alexandre de Streel. 2017. Internet Platforms and Non-Discrimination. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
226. Yannick Bartens, Hashim Iqbal Chunpir, Frederik Schulte, Stefan Voß. Business/IT Alignment in Two-Sided Markets 82-111. [Crossref]
227. Nabyla Daidj, Thierry Delecqle, Cédric Diridollou, Catherine Morin. 2017. Transformation digitale et avènement des plateformes programmatiques : la publicité digitale en question. Management & Avenir 94:4, 131. [Crossref]
228. Tian-Tian Yang, Xiao Xuan, Wen-Ya Huang, Wen-Qi Duan. 2017. Optimizing Investment in Two-Sided Platforms. EURASIA Journal of Mathematics, Science and Technology Education 13:12. . [Crossref]
229. Alastair Berg, Chris Berg. 2017. Exit, Voice, and Forking. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
230. Junhong Chu, Puneet Manchanda. 2016. Quantifying Cross and Direct Network Effects in Online Consumer-to-Consumer Platforms. Marketing Science 35:6, 870-893. [Crossref]
231. David Bounie, Abel François, Leo Van Hove. 2016. Merchant Acceptance of Payment Cards: “Must Take” or “Wanna Take”? . Review of Network Economics 15:3. . [Crossref]
232. Sjur Didrik Flåm. 2016. Monotonicity and Market Equilibrium. Set-Valued and Variational Analysis 24:3, 403-421. [Crossref]
233. Neil Gandal, Hanna Halaburda. 2016. Can We Predict the Winner in a Market with Network Effects? Competition in Cryptocurrency Market. Games 7:3, 16. [Crossref]
234. Renato Gomes, Alessandro Pavan. 2016. Many-to-many matching and price discrimination. Theoretical Economics 11:3, 1005-1052. [Crossref]
235. Laura Dorfer. 2016. Datenzentrische Geschäftsmodelle als neuer Geschäftsmodelltypus in der Electronic-Business-Forschung: Konzeptionelle Bezugspunkte, Klassifikation und Geschäftsmodellarchitektur. Schmalenbachs Zeitschrift für betriebswirtschaftliche Forschung 68:3, 307-369. [Crossref]
236. Marcin Serafin. 2016. Cacophony of Contestation: Forms of Voice and the Warsaw Taxi Market as a Field of Struggles. European Journal of Sociology 57:2, 259-295. [Crossref]
237. Martin Peitz, Sven Rady, Piers Trepper. 2016. EXPERIMENTATION IN TWO-SIDED MARKETS. Journal of the European Economic Association 72. . [Crossref]
238. Alex Gold, Christiaan Hogendorn. 2016. Tipping in two-sided markets with asymmetric platforms. Economic Analysis and Policy 50, 85-90. [Crossref]
239. Wataru Tamura. 2016. Auction Platform Design and the Linkage Principle. The Journal of Industrial Economics 64:2, 201-225. [Crossref]
240. Lawrence J. White. 2016. Credit Rating Agencies: An Analysis Through the Lenses of Industrial Organization, Finance and Regulation. Pacific Economic Review 21:2, 202-226. [Crossref]
241. Sergei Koulayev, Marc Rysman, Scott Schuh, Joanna Stavins. 2016. Explaining adoption and use of payment instruments by US consumers. The RAND Journal of Economics 47:2, 293-325. [Crossref]
242. Santiago Carbó Valverde, Sujit Chakravorti, Francisco Rodríguez Fernández. 2016. The Role of Interchange Fees in Two-Sided Markets: An Empirical Investigation on Payment Cards. Review of Economics and Statistics 98:2, 367-381. [Crossref]
243. Chokri Aloui, Khaïreddine Jebli. 2016. Platform optimal capacity sharing: Willing to pay more does not guarantee a larger capacity share. Economic Modelling 54, 276-288. [Crossref]
244. Patrick Maille, Galina Schwartz. Content providers volunteering to pay network providers: Better than neutrality? 484-489. [Crossref]

245. Jooyong Jun, Eunjung Yeo. 2016. Entry of FinTech Firms and Competition in the Retail Payments Market. Asia-Pacific Journal of Financial Studies 45:2, 159-184. [Crossref]
246. Zhu Wang. 2016. Price cap regulation in a two-sided market: Intended and unintended consequences. International Journal of Industrial Organization 45, 28-37. [Crossref]
247. Netsanet Haile, Jörn Altmann. 2016. Value creation in software service platforms. Future Generation Computer Systems 55, 495-509. [Crossref]
248. . Accelerating growth 48-89. [Crossref]
249. Mika Kato. 2016. Jean Tirole, Nobel Prize Winner. Review of Political Economy 28:1, 23-44. [Crossref]
250. Juan Carlos Miguel, Miguel Ángel Casado. GAFAnomy (Google, Amazon, Facebook and Apple): The Big Four and the b-Ecosystem 127-148. [Crossref]
251. Alessandro Deserti. Design and the Transformation of Cities 63-79. [Crossref]
252. Bo Xing. Network Neutrality in the IoT: A Fuzzy Cognitive Map Extend Technology Roadmap Perspective 235-257. [Crossref]
253. Klaus Backhaus, Ulf König, Marc Bieling. Markenmigration 1-19. [Crossref]
254. Wilko Bolt, Nicole Jonker, Mirjam Plooi. European Retail Payments Systems: Cost, Pricing, Innovation and Regulation 159-186. [Crossref]
255. Geoffrey Parker, Marshall Van Alstyne. Platform Strategy 1-9. [Crossref]
256. Jürgen Bott, Udo Milkau. A Market for Payments — Payment Choice in the 21st Century Digital Economy 1-27. [Crossref]
257. Deanna Kennedy, Tayfun Keskin. A Pricing Model for the Internet of Things Enabled Smart Service Systems 1782-1789. [Crossref]
258. Bo Lu, Huipo Wang. 2016. Research on the Competitive Strategy of Cross-Border E-Commerce Comprehensive Pilot Area Based on the Spatial Competition. Scientific Programming 2016, 1-9. [Crossref]
259. Chiu Yu Ko, Bo Shen. 2016. From Win-Win to Winner-Take-All. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
260. Lawrence J. White. 2016. The Credit Rating Agencies: An Analysis Through the Lenses of Industrial Organization, Finance, and Regulation. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
261. Sujit Chakravorti. 2016. New Payment Technologies: Back to Basics. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
262. Bertin Martens. 2016. An Economic Policy Perspective on Online Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
263. Cristiano Codagnone, Bertin Martens. 2016. Scoping the Sharing Economy: Origins, Definitions, Impact and Regulatory Issues. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
264. Cristiano Codagnone, Fabienne Abadie, Federico Biagi. 2016. The Future of Work in the Sharing Economy. Market Efficiency and Equitable Opportunities or Unfair Precarisation?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
265. Carlotta Mariotto. 2016. Competition for Lending in the Internet Era: The Case of Peer-to-Peer Lending Marketplaces in the USA. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
266. Pieter A. Gautier, Bo Hu, Makoto Watanabe. 2016. Marketmaking Middlemen. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
267. Neil Gandal, Hanna Halaburda. 2016. Can We Predict the Winner in a Market with Network Effects? Competition in Cryptocurrency Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

268. Olena Havrylchyk, Carlotta Mariotto, Talal-Ur- Rahim. 2016. What Drives the Expansion of the Peer-to-Peer Lending?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
269. Zemin (Zachary) Zhong. 2016. Targeted Search and Platform Design. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
270. Sofia Ranchordas. 2016. On Sharing and Quasi-Sharing: The Tension between Sharing-Economy Practices, Public Policy and Regulation. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
271. Diane Coyle. 2016. Making the Most of Platforms: A Policy Research Agenda. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
272. Geoffrey Parker, Marshall W. Van Alstyne, Xiaoyue Jiang. 2016. Platform Ecosystems: How Developers Invert the Firm. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
273. M.Mahdi Tavalaei, Juan Santalo. 2016. Waiting Time in Platform Markets. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
274. Francesca Di Pillo, Nathan Levialdi, Lupi Flavia. 2016. Traffic Management of Video on Demand: An Analysis of Investments for Improving the End User's Quality of Experience. International Journal of Engineering Business Management 8, 1. [Crossref]
275. Simon Loertscher, Leslie M. Marx, Tom Wilkening. 2015. A Long Way Coming: Designing Centralized Markets with Privately Informed Buyers and Sellers. Journal of Economic Literature 53:4, 857-897. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
276. Kevin J. Boudreau, Lars B. Jeppesen. 2015. Unpaid crowd complementors: The platform network effect mirage. Strategic Management Journal 36:12, 1761-1777. [Crossref]
277. Ginger Zhe Jin, Marc Rysman. 2015. Platform Pricing at Sports Card Conventions. The Journal of Industrial Economics 63:4, 704-735. [Crossref]
278. Paul Heidhues, Botond Köszegi. 2015. On the Welfare Costs of Naiveté in the US Credit-Card Market. Review of Industrial Organization 47:3, 341-354. [Crossref]
279. Andrei Hagiu, Julian Wright. 2015. Multi-sided platforms. International Journal of Industrial Organization 43, 162-174. [Crossref]
280. Daniel D. Garcia-Swartz, Florencia Garcia-Vicente. 2015. Network effects on the iPhone platform: An empirical examination. Telecommunications Policy 39:10, 877-895. [Crossref]
281. Martin Peitz, Tommaso Valletti. 2015. Reassessing competition concerns in electronic communications markets. Telecommunications Policy 39:10, 896-912. [Crossref]
282. Amrit Tiwana. 2015. Platform Desertion by App Developers. Journal of Management Information Systems 32:4, 40-77. [Crossref]
283. Sebastian Voigt, Oliver Hinz. 2015. Network effects in two-sided markets: why a 50/50 user split is not necessarily revenue optimal. Business Research 8:1, 139-170. [Crossref]
284. Jan Ondrus, Avinash Gannamaneni, Kalle Lyytinen. 2015. The Impact of Openness on the Market Potential of Multi-Sided Platforms: A Case Study of Mobile Payment Platforms. Journal of Information Technology 30:3, 260-275. [Crossref]
285. Richard J. Gilbert. 2015. E-books: A Tale of Digital Disruption. Journal of Economic Perspectives 29:3, 165-184. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
286. Geerten van de Kaa, Hans de Bruijn. 2015. Platforms and incentives for consensus building on complex ICT systems: The development of WiFi. Telecommunications Policy 39:7, 580-589. [Crossref]
287. Yutaka Mizuno, Nobutaka Otake. Current status of smart systems and case studies of privacy protection platform for smart city in Japan 612-624. [Crossref]
288. Mark Armstrong. 2015. Opening Access to Research. The Economic Journal 125:586, F1-F30. [Crossref]

289. Sang Hoo Bae, Kyeongwon Yoo. 2015. Economic modeling of innovation in the creative industries and its implications. Technological Forecasting and Social Change 96, 101-110. [Crossref]
290. S. Sriram, Puneet Manchanda, Mercedes Esteban Bravo, Junhong Chu, Liye Ma, Minjae Song, Scott Shriver, Upender Subramanian. 2015. Platforms: a multiplicity of research opportunities. Marketing Letters 26:2, 141-152. [Crossref]
291. I. Vogelsang. 2015. Will the U.S. and EU telecommunications policies converge? A survey. Economia e Politica Industriale 42:2, 117-155. [Crossref]
292. Nicholas Economides, Benjamin E. Hermalin. 2015. The strategic use of download limits by a monopoly platform. The RAND Journal of Economics 46:2, 297-327. [Crossref]
293. Yinon Nahum, David Sarne, Sanmay Das, Onn Shehory. 2015. Two-sided search with experts. Autonomous Agents and Multi-Agent Systems 29:3, 364-401. [Crossref]
294. Aloys Prinz, Jan Piening, Thomas Ehrmann. 2015. The success of art galleries: a dynamic model with competition and information effects. Journal of Cultural Economics 39:2, 153-176. [Crossref]
295. Joana Monteiro, Matthew Austin, Gaurav Mandilwar, Raj Sharman. Smart City App 396-400. [Crossref]
296. Ralf Dewenter, Jürgen Rösch. Ökonomie der Medienmärkte 3-10. [Crossref]
297. Ralf Dewenter, Jürgen Rösch. Das Konzept der zweiseitigen Märkte 115-138. [Crossref]
298. Ralf Dewenter, Jürgen Rösch. Anwendung der Theorie zweiseitiger Märkte 197-223. [Crossref]
299. Krishna Moniz, Yuyu Yuan. Reaching Critical Mass: The Effect of Adding New Content on Website Visitors and User Registration 359-369. [Crossref]
300. Paola Tubaro. Microeconomics, History of 331-337. [Crossref]
301. Henry Hexmoor. Economic Networks 75-79. [Crossref]
302. Simon P. Anderson, Bruno Jullien. The Advertising-Financed Business Model in Two-Sided Media Markets 41-90. [Crossref]
303. Ambarish Chandra, Ulrich Kaiser. Newspapers and Magazines 397-444. [Crossref]
304. Tayfun Keskin, Deanna Kennedy. Strategies in Smart Service Systems Enabled Multi-sided Markets: Business Models for the Internet of Things 1443-1452. [Crossref]
305. Victor Dibia, Christian Wagner. Success within App Distribution Platforms: The Contribution of App Diversity and App Cohesivity 4304-4313. [Crossref]
306. Andrei Hagiu, Julian Wright. 2015. Marketplace or Reseller?. Management Science 61:1, 184-203. [Crossref]
307. Siddhartha Banerjee, Carlos Riquelme, Ramesh Johari. 2015. Pricing in Ride-Share Platforms: A Queueing-Theoretic Approach. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
308. Amedeo Piolatto. 2015. Online Booking and Information: Competition and Welfare Consequences of Review Aggregators. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
309. Martin Nielsen. 2015. Strategic Investment Dependence and Net Neutrality. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
310. Richard Gilbert. 2015. E-Books: A Tale of Digital Disruption. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
311. Doh-Shin Jeon, Byung-Cheol Kim, Domenico Menicucci. 2015. Price Discrimination by a Two-Sided Platform: With Applications to Advertising and Privacy Design. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
312. Fernando Diez. 2015. Promoting Competition in Digital Markets; A Case Against the Google Case, and the Futile Search of Neutrality in On-Line Searches. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
313. Andrei Hagiu, Julian Wright. 2015. Multi-Sided Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

314. Simon den Uijl, Henk J. de Vries, Deniz Bayramoglu. The Rise of MP3 as the Market Standard 140-169. [Crossref]
315. Yutaka Mizuno, Nobutaka Odake. 2015. A Case Study of Progressive Formation of Accounting Cloud Services in JAPAN. International Journal of Service Science, Management, Engineering, and Technology 6:1, 1-21. [Crossref]
316. Rob Frieden. 2014. New models and conflicts in the interconnection and delivery of Internet-mediated content. Telecommunications Policy 38:11, 970-978. [Crossref]
317. Kyeongwon Yoo, ###, ###. 2014. Analysis on the Credit Guarantee System for Creative Economy in Korea. Asia-Pacific Journal of Business Venturing and Entrepreneurship 9:6, 47-64. [Crossref]
318. David Sarne, Yonatan Aumann. 2014. Exploration costs as a means for improving performance in multiagent systems. Annals of Mathematics and Artificial Intelligence 72:3-4, 297-329. [Crossref]
319. Santiago Carbó-Valverde, Francisco Rodríguez-Fernández. 2014. ATM withdrawals, debit card transactions at the point of sale and the demand for currency. SERIEs 5:4, 399-417. [Crossref]
320. Timothy Simcoe, Michael W. Toffel. 2014. Government green procurement spillovers: Evidence from municipal building policies in California. Journal of Environmental Economics and Management 68:3, 411-434. [Crossref]
321. Kevin Hasker, Eren Inci. 2014. FREE PARKING FOR ALL IN SHOPPING MALLS. International Economic Review 55:4, 1281-1304. [Crossref]
322. Annabelle Gawer. 2014. Bridging differing perspectives on technological platforms: Toward an integrative framework. Research Policy 43:7, 1239-1249. [Crossref]
323. Johannes M. Bauer. 2014. Platforms, systems competition, and innovation: Reassessing the foundations of communications policy. Telecommunications Policy 38:8-9, 662-673. [Crossref]
324. Volodymyr Bilotkach, Nicholas G. Rupp. Buyer Subsidies in Two-Sided Markets: Evidence from Online Travel Agents 339-374. [Crossref]
325. Wen-Chung Guo, Fu-Chuan Lai. 2014. Media Bias When Advertisers Have Bargaining Power. Journal of Media Economics 27:3, 120-136. [Crossref]
326. Thomas Holzmann, Klaus Sailer, Bernhard R. Katzy. 2014. Matchmaking as multi-sided market for open innovation. Technology Analysis & Strategic Management 26:6, 601-615. [Crossref]
327. Xiao Shao. Competition of Banks as Two-Sided Markets 646-650. [Crossref]
328. Yannick Bartens, Frederik Schulte, Stefan Voß. 2014. Business/IT Alignment in Two Sided Markets. International Journal of IT/Business Alignment and Governance 5:2, 27-43. [Crossref]
329. Florian W. Bartholomae. 2014. Der Markt für Social Games. Der Betriebswirt 55:2, 23-28. [Crossref]
330. Daniel Halbheer, Florian Stahl, Oded Koenigsberg, Donald R. Lehmann. 2014. Choosing a digital content strategy: How much should be free?. International Journal of Research in Marketing 31:2, 192-206. [Crossref]
331. Renato Gomes. 2014. Optimal auction design in two-sided markets. The RAND Journal of Economics 45:2, 248-272. [Crossref]
332. Timothy Bresnahan, Shane Greenstein. 2014. Mobile Computing: The Next Platform Rivalry. American Economic Review 104:5, 475-480. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
333. Meenal Chhabra, Sanmay Das, David Sarne. 2014. Expert-mediated sequential search. European Journal of Operational Research 234:3, 861-873. [Crossref]
334. Markus Reisinger. 2014. Two-part tariff competition between two-sided platforms. European Economic Review 68, 168-180. [Crossref]
335. BERNARD HOEKMAN, NIALL MEAGHER. 2014. China – Electronic Payment Services : discrimination, economic development and the GATS. World Trade Review 13:2, 409-442. [Crossref]

336. René Bohnsack, Jonatan Pinkse, Ans Kolk. 2014. Business models for sustainable technologies: Exploring business model evolution in the case of electric vehicles. Research Policy 43:2, 284-300. [Crossref]
337. Paola Tubaro, Antonio A. Casilli, Yasaman Sarabi. The Role of Corporate Actors: The Dilemma of Privacy Monetization 7-14. [Crossref]
338. Amrit Tiwana. Why Platform Businesses Are Unlike Product or Service Businesses 49-59. [Crossref]
339. Amrit Tiwana. Platform Architecture 73-116. [Crossref]
340. Amrit Tiwana. Platform Governance 117-151. [Crossref]
341. Amrit Tiwana. Evolving a Platform 201-246. [Crossref]
342. . References 283-287. [Crossref]
343. Benjamin E. Hermalin. Uncertainty and Imperfect Information in Markets 263-384. [Crossref]
344. Puqing Lai. 2014. Utilizing the access value of customers. Business Horizons 57:1, 61-71. [Crossref]
345. Timothy Simcoe. 2014. Governing the Anticommons: Institutional Design for Standard-Setting Organizations. Innovation Policy and the Economy 14, 99-128. [Crossref]
346. Hamed Tajedin, Dorti Nevo. Value-Adding Intermediaries in Software Crowdsourcing 1396-1405. [Crossref]
347. Andreas Zolnowski, Christian Weiss, Tilo Bohmann. Representing Service Business Models with the Service Business Model Canvas -- The Case of a Mobile Payment Service in the Retail Industry 718-727. [Crossref]
348. David Bounie, Abel Francois, Leo Van Hove. 2014. Merchant Acceptance of Payment Cards in France: 'Le Client Est Roi!'. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
349. Zhu Wang, Alexander L. Wolman. 2014. Payment Choice and the Future of Currency: Insights from Two Billion Retail Transactions. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
350. Rob Frieden. 2014. New Models and Conflicts in the Interconnection and Delivery of Internet-Mediated Content. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
351. Mei Lin, Ruhai Wu, Wen Zhou. 2014. Platform Subsidy with Endogenous Network Effects. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
352. Geoffrey Parker, Marshall W. Van Alstyne. 2014. Platform Strategy. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
353. Kevin J. Boudreau, Lars Bo Jeppesen. 2014. Unpaid Crowd Complementors: The Platform Network Effect Mirage. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
354. Bruce J. Summers, Kirstin E. Wells. 2014. Governance of Payment Systems: A Theoretical Framework and Cross-Country Comparison. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
355. Junhong Chu, Puneet Manchanda. 2014. Quantifying Cross-Network Effects in Online C2C Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
356. Michal S. Gal, Daniel L. Rubinfeld. 2014. The Hidden Costs of Free Goods: Implications for Antitrust Enforcement. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
357. Nicholas Economides, Benjamin E. Hermalin. 2014. The Strategic Use of Download Limits by a Monopoly Platform. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
358. S. Sriram, Puneet Manchanda, Mercedes Esteban-Bravo, Junhong Chu, Liye Ma, Minjae Song, Scott Shriver, Upender Subramanian. 2014. Platforms: A Multiplicity of Research Opportunities. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
359. Andrei Hagiu, Julian Wright. 2014. Marketplace or Reseller?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

360. Javier Cenamor, Belén Usero, Zulima Fernández. 2013. The role of complementary products on platform adoption: Evidence from the video console market. Technovation 33:12, 405-416. [Crossref]
361. Maximilian von Ehrlich, Tanja Greiner. 2013. The role of online platforms for media markets — Two-dimensional spatial competition in a two-sided market. International Journal of Industrial Organization 31:6, 723-737. [Crossref]
362. Lawrence J. White. 2013. Credit Rating Agencies: An Overview. Annual Review of Financial Economics 5:1, 93-122. [Crossref]
363. Peter Buxmann, Oliver Hinz. 2013. Makers. WIRTSCHAFTSINFORMATIK 55:5, 361-364. [Crossref]
364. Peter Buxmann, Oliver Hinz. 2013. Makers. Business & Information Systems Engineering 5:5, 357-360. [Crossref]
365. David Sarne. 2013. Competitive Shopbots-Mediated Markets. ACM Transactions on Economics and Computation 1:3, 1-41. [Crossref]
366. Özlem Bedre-Defolie,, Emilio Calvano. 2013. Pricing Payment Cards. American Economic Journal: Microeconomics 5:3, 206-231. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
367. André Marchand, Thorsten Hennig-Thurau. 2013. Value Creation in the Video Game Industry: Industry Economics, Consumer Benefits, and Research Opportunities. Journal of Interactive Marketing 27:3, 141-157. [Crossref]
368. Yuqing Zheng, Harry Kaiser. 2013. Optimal quality threshold of admission in a two-sided farmers' market. Applied Economics 45:23, 3360-3369. [Crossref]
369. José-Luis Gómez-Barroso, Claudio Feijóo-González. 2013. Información personal: la nueva moneda de la economía digital. El Profesional de la Informacion 22:4, 290-297. [Crossref]
370. Lesley Chiou, Catherine Tucker. 2013. Paywalls and the demand for news. Information Economics and Policy 25:2, 61-69. [Crossref]
371. Thomas Holzmann, Klaus Sailer, Bernhard Katzy. The matching process for innovation partnerships: A multi-sided market perspective 1-12. [Crossref]
372. ###, ###. 2013. A Study on Improvements of Merchant Fees System for Credit Cards Currencies based on International Comparison. International Commerce and Information Review 15:2, 131-148. [Crossref]
373. Feriha Zingal, Frauke Becker. 2013. Drivers of optimal prices in two-sided markets: the state of the art. Journal für Betriebswirtschaft 63:2, 87-116. [Crossref]
374. Mark J. McCabe, Christopher M. Snyder, Anna Fagin. 2013. Open Access versus Traditional Journal Pricing: Using a Simple "Platform Market" Model to Understand Which Will Win (and Which Should). The Journal of Academic Librarianship 39:1, 11-19. [Crossref]
375. Christian Handke. 2013. The Economics of Collective Copyright Management. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
376. Denis Lescop, Elena Lescop. 2013. Firm/Market Equivalency: How Platforms are Shaping Markets Through Market Failures. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
377. Ivanka Visnjic, Carmelo Cennamo. 2013. The Gang of Four: Acquaintances, Friends or Foes? Towards an Integrated Perspective on Platform Competition. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
378. Grant Bishop. 2013. Issues for Two-Sided Platforms in Canadian Competition Law. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
379. Raj Dash. 2013. Market Segmentation of Facebook Users. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
380. Michael Andrew Cohen, Marc Rysman. 2013. Payment Choice with Consumer Panel Data. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

381. Markus Reisinger. 2013. Two-Part Tariff Competition between Two-Sided Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
382. Frank Mueller-Langer, Richard Watt. 2013. Optimal Pricing and Quality of Academic Journals and the Ambiguous Welfare Effects of Forced Open Access: A Two-Sided Model. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
383. Volodymyr Bilotkach, Nicholas G. Rupp, Vivek Pai. 2013. Value of a Platform to a Seller: Case of American Airlines and Online Travel Agencies. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
384. Charles Angelucci, Julia Cage, Romain de Nijs. 2013. Price Discrimination in a Two-Sided Market: Theory and Evidence from the Newspaper Industry. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
385. Robert Seamans, Feng Zhu. 2013. A Simple Model of a Three-Sided Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
386. Maxime Agbo. 2013. The Multi-Level Marketing as a Two-Sided Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
387. Jed DeVaro, Oliver GGrtler. 2013. Advertising and Labor Market Matching: A Tour Through the Times. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
388. Nicholas Economides, Benjamin E. Hermalin. 2013. The Strategic Use of Download Limits by a Monopoly Platform. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
389. John Byers, Davide Proserpio, Georgios Zervas. 2013. The Rise of the Sharing Economy: Estimating the Impact of Airbnb on the Hotel Industry. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
390. Johannes M. Bauer. 2013. The Evolution of the European Regulatory Framework for Electronic Communications. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
391. Simon den Uijl, Henk J. de Vries, Deniz Bayramoglu. 2013. The Rise of MP3 as the Market Standard. International Journal of IT Standards and Standardization Research 11:1, 1-26. [Crossref]
392. Xue “Snow” Dong, Krishna Jayakar. 2013. The Baidu Music Settlement: A Turning Point for Copyright Reform In China?. Journal of Information Policy 3, 77. [Crossref]
393. Julian Wright. 2012. Why payment card fees are biased against retailers. The RAND Journal of Economics 43:4, 761-780. [Crossref]
394. ###, Kilsun Kim. 2012. A Study on the Platform-based Service Innovation Strategy in a Two-sided Market : A Case of Dominant Design in a Smart TV Market. Journal of Korea Service Management Society 13:4, 83-108. [Crossref]
395. Kevin J. Boudreau. 2012. Let a Thousand Flowers Bloom? An Early Look at Large Numbers of Software App Developers and Patterns of Innovation. Organization Science 23:5, 1409-1427. [Crossref]
396. Thomas Widjaja, Peter Buxmann. 2012. Kompatibilität von Softwareplattformen. Zeitschrift für Betriebswirtschaft 82:S4, 141-169. [Crossref]
397. Øystein Foros, Hans Jarle Kind, Guttorm Schjelderup. 2012. Ad Pricing by Multi-Channel Platforms: How to Make Viewers and Advertisers Prefer the Same Channel?. Journal of Media Economics 25:3, 133-146. [Crossref]
398. Jacob Glazer, Haiden A. Huskamp, Thomas G. McGuire. 2012. A Prescription for Drug Formulary Evaluation: An Application of Price Indexes. Forum for Health Economics & Policy 15:2. . [Crossref]
399. Christoph Burkard, Thomas Widjaja, Peter Buxmann. 2012. Software Ecosystems. WIRTSCHAFTSINFORMATIK 54:1, 43-47. [Crossref]
400. Christoph Burkard, Thomas Widjaja, Peter Buxmann. 2012. Software Ecosystems. Business & Information Systems Engineering 4:1, 41-44. [Crossref]

401. Gozem Guceri-Ucar, Stefan Koch. Cooperative Advertising in Video Game Software Marketing: A Game Theoretic Analysis of Game Software Publisher – Platform Manufacturer Dynamics 154-167. [\[Crossref\]](#)
402. Alexander White. Online Platforms, Economics of 1-9. [\[Crossref\]](#)
403. Lapo Filistrucchi, Damien Geradin, Eric E.C. van Damme. 2012. Identifying Two-Sided Markets. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
404. Volodymyr Bilotkach, Nicholas G. Rupp. 2012. Buyer Subsidies in Two-Sided Markets: Evidence from Online Travel Agents. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
405. Giacomo Luchetta. 2012. Is the Google Platform a Two-Sided Market?. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
406. Timothy S. Simcoe, Michael W. Toffel. 2012. Public Procurement and the Private Supply of Green Buildings. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
407. Yiyi Zhou. 2012. Failure to Launch in Two-Sided Markets: A Study of the U.S. Video Game Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
408. Byung-Cheol Kim, Jeongsik Lee, Hyunwoo Park. 2012. Two-Sided Platform Competition in the Online Daily Deals Promotion Market. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
409. Juan Fung, Chia-Ling Hsu. 2012. Platform Markets and Matching with Contracts. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
410. James McAndrews, Zhu Wang. 2012. The Economics of Two-Sided Payment Card Markets: Pricing, Adoption and Usage. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
411. Wataru Tamura. 2012. Auction Platform Design and the Linkage Principle. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
412. Mark J. McCabe, Christopher M. Snyder, Anna Fagin. 2012. Open Access Versus Traditional Journal Pricing: Using a Simple 'Platform Market' Model to Understand Which Will Win (and Which Should). SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
413. Sergei Koulayev, Marc Rysman, Scott D. Schuh, Joanna Stavins. 2012. Explaining Adoption and Use of Payment Instruments by U.S. Consumers. SSRN Electronic Journal . [\[Crossref\]](#)
414. Myriam Davidovici-Nora, Marc Bourreau. 2012. Les marchés à deux versants dans l'industrie des jeux vidéo. Réseaux n° 173-174:3, 97. [\[Crossref\]](#)
415. Henning Piezunka. 2011. Technological platforms. Journal für Betriebswirtschaft 61:2-3, 179-226. [\[Crossref\]](#)
416. Wilfred Dolfsma. 2011. Government Failure — Four Types. Journal of Economic Issues 45:3, 593-604. [\[Crossref\]](#)
417. Hyun-Sik Seo, In-Kuk Song. 2011. The Study on the Acceptable Intention of Smart and Mobile Device : Based on Two-Sided Network Effect. The KIPS Transactions:PartD 18D:4, 287-298. [\[Crossref\]](#)
418. Nikolaus Fink. 2011. SSNIP, state-owned enterprises, public goods and complements. Empirica 38:3, 381-388. [\[Crossref\]](#)
419. Oz Shy,, Zhu Wang. 2011. Why Do Payment Card Networks Charge Proportional Fees?. American Economic Review 101:4, 1575-1590. [\[Abstract\]](#) [\[View PDF article\]](#) [\[PDF with links\]](#)
420. Ralf Dewenter, Justus Haucap, Tobias Wenzel. 2011. Semi-collusion in media markets. International Review of Law and Economics 31:2, 92-98. [\[Crossref\]](#)
421. Estelle Cantillon, Pai-Ling Yin. 2011. Competition between exchanges: A research agenda. International Journal of Industrial Organization 29:3, 329-336. [\[Crossref\]](#)

422. Oz Shy. 2011. A Short Survey of Network Economics. Review of Industrial Organization 38:2, 119-149. [Crossref]
423. Thomas Widjaja, Peter Buxmann. Compatibility of Software Platforms 15-41. [Crossref]
424. Thomas G. McGuire. Demand for Health Insurance Research on this chapter was partially supported by NIA P01 AG032952, The Role of Private Plans in Medicare, and NIMH R01 MH094290. I am grateful to Martin Anderson, Sebastian Bauhoff, Pedro Pita Barros, Emily Corcoran, Jacob Glazer, Mark Pauly, Anna Sinaiko, and Jacob Wallace for many helpful comments 317-396. [Crossref]
425. Robert Seamans, Feng Zhu. 2011. Technology Shocks in Multi-Sided Markets: The Impact of Craigslist on Local Newspapers. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
426. Minjae Song. 2011. Estimating Platform Market Power in Two-Sided Markets with an Application to Magazine Advertising. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
427. Yuqing Zheng, Harry M. Kaiser. 2011. A Two-Sided, Empirical Model of the Submission and Subscription Markets for Economics Journals. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
428. Daniel Halbheer, Florian Stahl, Oded Koenigsberg, Donald R. Lehmann. 2011. Optimal Sampling of Paid Content. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
429. Elena De Vogelee, Denis Lescop. 2011. Plateformes, Coordination et Incitations. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
430. Denis Lescop, Elena De Vogelee. 2011. Firm/Market Equivalency: Determinants and Effects on Industry Dynamics. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
431. Martin Peitz, Sven Rady, Piers Trepper. 2011. Experimentation in Two-Sided Markets. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
432. Helmut M. Dietl, Christian Weingaertner. 2011. The Effect of Professional Football Clubs' Legal Structure on Sponsoring Revenue. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
433. Breuer Christoph, Helmut M. Dietl, Christian Weingaertner, Wicker Pamela. 2011. The Effect of a Sports Institution's Legal Structure on Sponsorship Income: The Case of Amateur Equestrian Sports in Germany. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
434. Marc Bourreau, Christian Grece. 2011. L'impact de la suppression de la publicité sur les chaînes de télévision publiques. Revue économique 62:5, 781. [Crossref]
435. Chokri Aloui, Khaïreddine Jebli. 2010. Optimal pricing of a two-sided monopoly platform with a one-sided congestion effect. International Review of Economics 57:4, 423-439. [Crossref]
436. Kevin Boudreau. 2010. Open Platform Strategies and Innovation: Granting Access vs. Devolving Control. Management Science 56:10, 1849-1872. [Crossref]
437. E. Glen Weyl. 2010. A Price Theory of Multi-Sided Platforms. American Economic Review 100:4, 1642-1672. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
438. Lawrence J. White., 2010. Markets: The Credit Rating Agencies. Journal of Economic Perspectives 24:2, 211-226. [Abstract] [View PDF article] [PDF with links]
439. Shengli Li, Yipeng Liu, Subhrajyoti Bandyopadhyay. 2010. Network effects in online two-sided market platforms: A research note. Decision Support Systems 49:2, 245-249. [Crossref]
440. Helmut Dietl. 2010. Erfolgsstrategien im Plattformwettbewerb. Schmalenbachs Zeitschrift für betriebswirtschaftliche Forschung 62:S62, 63-83. [Crossref]
441. Oz Shy. 2010. Person-to-Person Electronic Funds Transfers: Recent Developments and Policy Issues. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
442. Oz Shy. 2010. A Short Survey of Network Economics. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]

- 443. Scott D. Schuh, Oz Shy, Joanna Stavins. 2010. Who Gains and Who Loses from Credit Card Payments? Theory and Calibrations. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
- 444. Wilko Bolt, Sujit Chakravorti. 2010. Digitization of Retail Payment. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
- 445. Kong-Pin Chen, Yen-Chi Huang. 2009. A Search-Matching Model of the Two-Sided Platforms. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
- 446. Wolfgang H. Gick. 2009. Platforms or Franchisors? Two Contractual Forms When Consumers Care About Quality. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
- 447. Kevin J. Boudreau. 2008. Opening the Platform vs. Opening the Complementary Good? The Effect on Product Innovation in Handheld Computing. SSRN Electronic Journal . [Crossref]
- 448. Yutaka Mizuno, Nobutaka Otake. A Case Study of Progressive Formation of Accounting Cloud Services in Japan 406-425. [Crossref]